Trapped In Flaming Truck

Crash Kills Sikeston Man

One man was killed and another injured in a flaming collision of two trucks on Interstate 55 five miles north of Sikeston.

Dead is John Costello, 20, of Jon Don Acres Trailer Court on Sikeston Route Two.

Costello died when the pickup truck he was driving was struck in the rear by a tractor- trailer truck driven by Harvey H. Hull, 20, of Sikeston.

Hull was treated for cuts and bruises at Missouri Delta Community Hospital.

The Highway patrol said Costello's truck was either stopped in the highway or traveling very slowly. Costello was trapped in the wreckage which burst into flames on impact. The flames were fed by paint from a spray paint rig in the back of the pickup.

Sikeston firemen extinguished the blaze while workmen cleared the wreckage which blocked the highway for over an hour.

Scott County Coroner Gene Nunnelee said a report is being investigated that a man had been to a farmer's house near the accident scene asking for a gallon of gasoline. The man reportedly told the farmer his truck had run out of gas on the highway.

The incident reportedly occurred just before the time of the accident.

Nunnelee said that if the story is true, it could explain why Costello's truck was stopped or moving slowly.

Costello had lived in the Sikeston area about a month. He operated his own spray-painting company and moved from location to location.

Survivors include his widow, Geneva Costello; one daughter, Kathy Costello of the home; his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Pete Costello of Sikeston, two brothers, Thomas and Pete Costello of Sikeston; his paternal grandmother, Mrs. Katie Costello of Blytheville, Ark.

The body was removed from Nunnelee Funeral Home today and taken to a funeral home in Memphis, Tenn., where services and burial will be held.

Harley E. Massie, 36, of Poplar Bluff received chin cuts Wednesday at 5:30 a.m. when his car ran off the road and struck a dirt embankment. The accident occurred on Route M eight miles west of Poplar Bluff.

At 7:30 p.m. Wednesday on Highway 25 three miles north of Kennett, a car driven by Carl E. Starkey, 24, of Holcomb left the road, ran into a ditch and overturned twice. Starkey received a possible back injury, scratches and cuts and was taken to Dunklin County Memorial Hospital in Kennett.

Man And Wife Jailed After Shootout Here

A man and his wife were in city jail this morning after a shootout about 5:30 p.m. Wednesday at the corner of South West Street and West Malone Avenue left both of them wounded.

Being held for attempted murder is Joyce Jones, 718 Ruth St., and Robert Jones, 614 William St, was jailed for felonious assault and displaying a dangerous and deadly weapon. Formal charges had not been filed this morning, but Jones was turned over Scott County authorities on charges of parole violation.

The two were arrested after Policeman Walter Wilson saw Mrs. Jones get out of a car with blood on her hand. When Wilson asked her what was wrong, she said her husband had tried to kill Wilson was about to search Jones when he discovered the man had been shot in the leg.

Both were treated and released from Missouri Delta Community Hospital.

A .22 caliber revolver used in the shooting was recovered, police said.

While Mrs. Jones was being treated at the hospital, she allegedly admitted trying to kill her husband.

Police announced one other arrest Wednesday. Jack Cothern, 844 Agnes, was arrested for the second time on charges of keeping chickens in the city limits. He was previously arrested on that charge on Oct. 30. The case against him was dismissed in City Court last week after he promised to dispose of the chickens.

Bond Names James New Administrator

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo. (AP) — Gov.-Elect Christopher S. "Kit" Bond has picked Deputy State Auditor Robert L. James, 32, of Webb City as a start on his campaign promise to professionalize the state government.

He told his first news conference as the newly elected governor Wednesday James would be the first commissioner of administration—the biggest single job under the governmental reorganization plan that starts operating next year.

At the same time Bond announced:

—Col. E. I. "Mike" Hockaday probably would be replaced as superintendent of the Missouri Highway Patrol. Bond implied he thought the patrol had not been free of politics.

—The St. Louis Election Board will get "a complete housecleaning" because of confusion in the voting Tuesday. He said that is the only state agency that "we're going to start completely afresh."

—He plans to do away with license fee offices, often tinged with scandal, and have the new director of revenue, not yet named, turn the license fee job over to local officials chosen by local city or county governing bodies.

—There will be no staff of honorary colonels and no low automobile license plates to reward political friends and campaign financial angels.

As part of the transitional process, he said retiring Democratic Gov. Warren E. Hearnes had offered his cooperation in an hour-long meeting Wednesday.

Bond said he and the governor would select liaison staffers to help make it a smooth transition when Bond is sworn in Jan. 8.

The top priority job now for the new commissioner of administration, Bond said, will be to prepare a 1973-74 budget for presentation to the new legislature early in January.

He said work is beginning on that immediately and budget appeal hearings for state agencies will be held next month. All but one—the state fair—have submitted their budget requests.

At the same time, the new governor said, James will start a review of existing state personnel and a search for professional talent to take over top state jobs that will be open. That process already has started. Bond conferred Wednesday with the Republican state chairman, Richard Berkley of Kansas City, and Rep. William C. Phelps, who hopes to be the new lieutenant governor when all the votes are counted.

Some Democratic officials have announced plans to resign and go into other work and others are expected to do so within the next few weeks.

Bond said he thought the executive orders of Hearnes transferring the Public Service Commission, purchasing agent and other offices to the merit system had no legal standing but jobholders found to be qualified would be retained in those agencies.

At the very outset, newsmen questioned both Bond and James on whether James could meet the legal requirements to be the first commissioner of administration.

He has a master's degree as the law specifies, but his career summary released by Bond did not show the full six years of administrative experience required in the 1971 law.

Landowners To Seek Flood Repair Funds

BELL CITY — A group of about 75 farmers met with government officials Wednesday night in the high school cafeteria to discuss steps to take in alleviating damage done by the recent flooding of the Castor and St. Francis rivers in Stoddard County.

The group decided to request emergency repair funds through the Little River Drainage District from the U.S. Army Corps of Engineers in Memphis to repair the levees in the Castor River and adjoining ditches.

Congressman Bill Burlison, who attended the meeting, offered to use his office to expedite the request.

State Sen. Nelson Tinnin said today that the drainage district will meet Nov. 20 in office of drainage district attorney Harry Brock in New Madrid to apply for funds to from the Corps of Engineers to restore to the levee to its previous condition.

Tinnin said he was told as much as $100,000 may be made available.

Other public officials present were State Rep.-elect C. F. Cline, W. P. Hunter of the board of supervisors of Little River Drainage District and Jerry Clawson, manager of Mingo Wildlife Refuge, representing the State Conservation Department.

Corps of Engineer officials included assistant district Engineer Murry Whitten and Roger Lyons, hydraulic engineer for the Memphis district, and James Reynolds, head of project operations at Lake Wappapello.

Whitten told the group that the Corp of Engineers is currently working on flood control projects along the drainage ditch system, but, under present plans, will not reach the Castor River until about 1980.

Burlison said he will be on the House Appropriations Committee in the next session of Congress and will try to get money for the project moving at a faster rate.

The Castor and St. Francis rivers overflowed their banks during recent heavy rains. An estimated 30,000 acres of farm land still in crop are under water.

Damage estimates to the crops are being placed at $14 million. That does not include damage to roads, bridges and personal property.

Cline said the county will seek to be declared a disaster area to enable resident to apply for low cost loans and grant- in- aid programs.

That relief cannot be sought until the flooding has receded and complete damage estimates are available.

Voting Violations Cited

JEFFERSON CITY — The Missouri attorney general's office is reportedly considering bringing charges against unnamed persons in connection with voting irregularities Tuesday in New Madrid County.

Assistant Atty. Gen. K. W. Almstedt refused to comment Wednesday on the reports, but admitted that the attorney general's office is reviewing evidence gathered during the election Tuesday and will make a decision soon on whether or not to prosecute.

At least seven violations reportedly were discovered by poll watchers sent into the county by the attorney general's office.

Poll watchers were in New Madrid, Lilbourn, Marston, Conran, Point Pleasant, Portageville, Gideon, Tallapoosa, Risco, Parma and Catron.

The poll watchers were sent into the county after the attorney general's office had received numerous complaints of voting irregularities in the past.

Gun Stolen From Home

Jim Gaines, 956 Lake St., reported to police that someone entered his home Wednesday and stole his 16-gauge shotgun.

Police said the house was entered sometime between 3:30 p.m. and 11 p.m. by breaking the glass in the front door.

The gun was valued at $109.

Two Placed On Probation

Demonstrators In Court

CHARLESTON — Oscar Lee Evans and Ray Rodgers, both of Charleston, pleaded guilty this morning to charges of interfering with the use of public property before Magistrate T. J. Brown Jr.

Evans and Rodgers received 10- day suspended jail sentences and were placed on six- month probation. Conditions of their probation were that they obey the law and pay $17 court costs.

The Rev. James W. Webb II and Bryant Rodgers II, both of Charleston, entered pleas of innocent to charges of interfering with the use of public property. Their cases were continued to Nov. 16, at which time they are to appear with their attorney. Each remained free on $100 bond.

The two men, along with Oscar Evans and Ray Rodgers, were arrested Nov. 2 during a demonstration at Charleston High School.

A preliminary hearing was set for Nov. 30 for Edward Estes of Charleston, who is charged with the felony of exhibiting a dangerous and deadly weapon. Estes, accused of flourishing a hunting knife on Nov. 3 in the presence of Albert Laster, was released on his own recognizance.

Larry Joe Myers and Walter Myers, both of East Prairie, had felony charges of striking an officer in performance of his duties continued to Nov. 30. The two are accused of striking East Prairie Police Sgt. Lyle Scott on Nov. 5. Larry Joe Myers is free on $2,500 bond and Walter Myers remains in custody.

Terry Lee Oliphant of East Prairie pleaded guilty to the misdemeanor of stealing an automobile battery valued at less than $50 from Vernon Walton. He received a 30-day suspended sentence and was placed on one- year probation on condition he obey the law and pay $29.50 costs.

CHRISTMAS SEALS

Christmas gimmicks come and go. Most last only a few years and then disappear from the marketplace One important exception is the Christmas Sea campaign, which began 68 years ago in Denmark and is still going strong. The 1972 appeal, sponsored by the National Tuberculosis Association (TBA), will begin on Friday, Nov. 10. Money raised from the sale of penny Christmas seals will be used for tubercular and respiratory disease community services, public health centers, education and research.

A special Christmas stamp was the idea of a Danish post office worker named Einer Hobboell who, in 1904, sold them to raise money for a children's tuberculosis hospital. The same year, the National Tuberculosis Association was formed in the United States. At that time, most Americans believed that the disease was hopeless and money to care for the afflicted was scarce. Late in 1907, doctors at a small TB hospital in Delaware appealed to one Emily Bissell to help raise $300 to keep the institution open. It was Miss Bissell who, having read about the Danish experiment, decided to conduct a similar appeal in the United States.

The newspapers, the President, the Chief Justice of the United States, congressional leaders, prominent businessmen and churchmen spoke out in support of the Christmas Seal campaign, and urged people to buy as many one-cent stamps as they could afford. Around $3,000 was raised in the few days before Christmas, 1907. For the next two years, the American Red Cross sponsored a national Christmas Seal campaign. The National Tuberculosis Association joined the crusade in 1910 and took it over 10 years later.

In 1971, Christmas seals raised $36,089,632 to fight not only tuberculosis but also emphysema, bronchitis and other respiratory ailments. The National Tuberculosis Association reports that there were 35,217 new cases of TB last year, bringing the total number to at least 300,000. Even more serious, about 25,000 people died of emphysema in 1971. The respiratory disease rate has been growing faster than any other; TBA estimates that 12 per cent of the population could be afflicted.

ELECTION POSTMORTEMS

The shouting is by no means over when the votes are tallied in a national election campaign; in some ways, it hardly has begun. The returns are pored over by politicians and columnists intent on finding out what they mean. But the most interested parties of all, besides the winning and losing candidates, may well be the poll-takers. One of the best known, Louis Harris, will present his postmortem of the election at the National Press Club in Washington, D. C., on Friday, Nov. 10.

George Gallup observes in a recently published book (The Sophisticated Poll Watcher's Guide, 1972) that "The pressure in election polling to be 'right' is great; in fact almost overwhelming." He adds: "The researcher stands naked before the whole world the day after the election. Everyone knows how far off the mark the forecast has been. No one but the poll-taker risks his reputation to the same degree."

Public opinion samplers never tire of making the point that election polls should not be regarded as hard- and -fast predictions. Polls can be "disturbing," Harris has written, "if they are viewed as a permanent fix on American public opinion." They should be viewed instead, he believes, as "single snapshots at one point in time of a constantly moving picture, a subtle kaleidoscope of people reacting to their national crises and challenges."

It is possible for a poll to be "right" even if it picks the wrong nominee. This, according to John F. Kraft, is what happened in 1960, when the Kraft poll and the Gallup Poll predicted a Kennedy victory while Elmo Roper said Nixon would be the winner. "But Roper was actually closer to the right margin that separated the two than we were," Kraft said, "so although the public would say Gallup and Kraft were right and Roper was wrong, our fellow pollsters would have to say, 'Nice job, Gallup, nice job, Kraft, but Roper was better.'"

WHO STAYS MARRIED LONGER?

The man and wife with college degrees, or the wedded couple with high school diplomas or less--which pair is more likely to stay married?

A new study by the Census Bureau suggests that the higher the school of marriage partners, the less likely it is that they will get divorced.

Divorces apparently will hit a record in 1972, totaling about 840,000, or approximately 9 per cent more than the 768,000 divorces of 1971. But the Census Bureau found this:

--Where both husband and wife are college graduates, 90 per cent have been married only once.

--Where bith are high school graduates, 83 per cent have been married only once.

--Where neither husband nor wife graduated from high school, 75 per cent have been married just one time.

Income appears to be another significant factor when divorce figures are studied. The higher the income of a couple, the more likely that the two have been married only once.

Also turned up by the Census Bureau's study were these added clues to American marriage-divorce habits:

--The number of marriage is rising, up nearly 50 per cent from the early 1960s. But that is partly the result of the increase in divorces followed by remarriages.

--The proportion of women remaining single into their early 20s actually has increased by nearly one third. In 1960, only 28 per cent of woman 20 to 24 years old were still single, but now 37 per cent of that age group have never married.

--In the turbulent years of World War II, divorces rose, reaching a peak of 610,000 in 1946. After that, they declined to a low of 368,000 in 1958. Since then the trend had been upward.

--The rate nearly doubled in the 1960s. In 1961, divorces passed 400,000. In 1970, the 700,000 level was reached, and this year an estimated 840,000 divorces are expected.

--More first marriages are ending in divorce. In 1940, only 6.3 per cent of the first marriages of women in their early 30s had ended in divorce. By 1970, the divorce rate at that age group had risen to 15.8 per cent and, in 1971, about 16.8 per cent had been divorced after a first marriage.

The divorce rate of younger women has also been rising. For women in their early 20s, only 2.1 per cent of first marriages had ended in divorce in 1940, but in 1970 the rate had gone up to 6.3 per cent.

--The remarriage rate had been rising along with the divorce rate. The number of remarriages is now nearly 400 who have been divorced or widowed. In the 1950s, the remarriage digure was about 250 per 1,000.

However, the vast majority of Americans will have stable marriages. Of the 41 million couples in the U. S. in June, 1971, about 33 million -- or 81 per cent -- had been married only once. At the other end of the scale, there were nearly 200,000 couples -- about four tenths of 1 per cent -- of which each spouse had been married three or more times.

Among the once-married and now- single Americans in mid-1971, there were about 2.5 million men and some 4.5 million women who were divorced or separated. Another 5 million women were widows, while fewer than 1 million men were widowers which reflected the fact that women live longer than men.

Roger sat brooding in a bar, and finally confessed to the bartender: "Ralph, I'm a rat. I've got a lovely wife at home and instead of appreciating her, I've been carrying on with another woman. But I'm going home right now, and I'm going to tell her everything and beg her to forgive me."

Thereupon, Roger paid his tab, went home, told his wife everything and begged her to forgive him.

"I'll forgive you on one condition," his wife said. "I want to know the name of the woman." But Ralph gallantly refused to tell her.

"Was it Della Niven?" she asked.

"I can't tell you, dear," he said.

"I'll bet it was Mrs. Adams down the block."

My lips are sealed," said hubby.

"I know," said the wife. "It was that hussy, Mrs. Clark!"

The next day Roger was seated again at the bar, and as he sipped his drink, the bartender asked how he'd made out with his resolution of the night before. "Not bad," said Roger. "My wife didn't forgive me, but she gave me three good leads."

WE'RE FILING CLERKS

"Guide to Record Retention Requirements. Office of the Federal Register, National Archives and Records Branch, General Services Administration. Announcing the latest edition GUIDE TO RECORD RETENTION REQUIREMENTS Revised as of January 1,1968. This useful reference tool, compiled from U. S. Statutes and from regulations issued by the various Federal agencies is designed to assist industry and the general public with their record-keeping functions. It contains over 900 digests detailing the retention periods for the many types of records required to be kept under Federal laws and rules. The 'Guide' tells the user (1) what records must be kept (2) who must keep them and (3) how long they must be kept. Each digest contains a reference to the full text of the basic law or regulation providing for such retention. The booklet's index, numbering 2,000 items, lists for ready reference the categories of persons, companies, and products affected by the Federal record retention requirements. Rev. 1968 (85) P. GS.4.107/a: R 245/968. 40 cents."

Thus, for four new sandwich dimes, any citizen can acquire a guide to what his future requirements in filing cabinets will be, and presumably can protect himself from future incarceration for failure to comply in the retention of records. Some proof-reader must have goofed when the Government Printing Office set that notice in type. That can't be a 1968 revised guide. It is strictly 1984 vintage.

Two thousand items indexed? And we're responsible for plowing through 85 pages of fine print to determine who, what and how long? Heaven help us!!

Wouldn't it be a good idea to have a Presidential Commission or a Congressional Committee conduct a survey to determine how much private enterprise could produce to alleviate poverty in our land if it were not saddled with interminable and expensive bookkeeping chores and record retention requirements.

Thomas Jefferson once declared: "Were we directed from Washington when to sow and when to reap, we should soon want bread."

Bread maybe, but not paper. Record retention requirements will take care of that. Who has enough time to sow or reap? There are records to be filed.

TORPEDOING CONSUMER INTERESTS

Businessmen find themselves in opposition to many consumer protection measures for the reason that these propsoals often spring from a basic philosophy hostile to business. It is a philosophy that can see no common interest between consumers and businessmen in the perpetuation of smoothly functioning, highly productive business institutions.

Retail distributors the nation over, for example, have been confronted with a rising tide of consumer protectionism. In the flood of new proposals are measures that could cripple the ability of retailers to serve consumers. Among these are class action laws. Under the compelling push of antibusiness -- and in reality anticonsumer -- fanatics, class action proposals become rallying points for legalized warfare against retailers, manufacturers and virtually every business in the country that comes into contact with consumers. The "overkill" potential of class action legislation, under which consumers can band together by the thousands in damage suits against the retailers, in incalculable. Firms with the highest reputation for ethical business practices and financial strength would be made vulnerable to expensive and destructive suits for such acts as: Advertising at a price which is later found to be an incorrect comparative price; failure to comply with numberless state and federal agency regulations on labeling, weights and measures, hazardous substances, and so forth; allegedly deceptive practices such a packaging, sales claims, service claims, guarantees, quality claims. The list is endless.

Competent authorities have warned that a single class action suit of the foregoing nature could throw even a strong company into bankruptcy, and large companies will be the most attractive targets. Consumer protectionism that seeks to cripple business, rather than correct abuses, works directly against consumers -- not for them.

SINGLE CAR ACCIDENTS CUT 50% BY LANE LINES

Secondary roads which are marked according to Federal Highway Administration standards successfully improve safety ratios, according to a recent study of traffic accidents sponsored by Potters Industries, Inc. of Carlstadt, N.J.

"Test areas marked with double yellow center lines, white skip lines indicating passing zones and white edgelines, showed a 50 percent reduction in single car accidents where the road was previously unmarked," John P. Manley, executive vice president of Potters, reported.

"Where the road was previously marked with only a single white center line and edgelines, we found a 32 per cent reduction." Control roads which were not marked showed an increase of 38 per cent in single car accidents, he said. The test was made in West Milford, N. J. from May through August, 1971.

"END" OF A WAR

Negotiations between the U.S. and North Vietnam have set the stage for the end of one of the most miserable wars in history. It has been the longest conflict in our history and in many ways the most costly. Not only have thousands of brave men been killed or wounded but the nation has been left divided. Only the War Between the States left deeper internal wounds.

Fundamentally, the war in Indochina was wrong on our part, not because we had a basic cause to fight communism, which threatens to engulf Asia and the entire world, but because we did not commit ourselves to a policy of winning. The military, which did not make the decision to get into the war, wanted to win but it was constantly hamstrung by politicians who were too timid to win. If we were restrained because of a fear of Chinese or Russian intervention, then we should hot have been there in the first place. If our cause was just that, as several administrations seemed to think, then we should have dedicated ourselves to total victory. There has been no logic in our foreign policy in Vietnam. War is simply an extension of a nation's foreign policy.

It is not clear now what safeguards, if any, are built into the settlement. A negotiated peace may serve the communist cause more adequately than a clear- cut victory on the field of battle. Once our Air Force and Navy are withdrawn, Hanoi could find the pickings easy and take over most of Asia through subversion. It is a safe bet that whoever is in power in Washington will be reluctant to recommit our armed forces again. The future is grim but not hopeless. Internal strength and a reunion in spirit of all the people in this nation can overcome all odds. HLH

Smashing Lettuce Boycott: Angry Teamster Set to Counterattack Cesar Chavez in 'Few Weeks'

WASHINGTON — Had a new Democratic party flag been unfurled this past campaign, it would have had a head of lettuce, not the head of the traditional donkey on it.

When in the eerie dawn hours of the final dramatic tableau of the national convention Ted Kennedy stood arms raised with Sens. McGovern and Eagleton, he shouted, "Fellow lettuce boycotters," and the young delegates, though weary for lack of sleep, rejuvenated, roared and roared and Kennedy opined quietly he'd gotten off a great line.

And when my path crisscrossed that of Sarge Shriver in Colorado Oct. 4, the word flashed that he had bought and would personally carry five heads of Cesar Chavez's Black Eagle lettuce to his chartered aircraft. He said, "I've got to get some lettuce for the plane." None of this annual herb had been served because the charismatic huelga - shouting Cesar Chavez is running a national boycott of all lettuce which doesn't bear the Black Eagle stamp of his United Farm Workers (UFW).

Few who haven't been on the hustings, or in California, or who haven't listened to the 45-year-old disciple of Saul Alinsky, the later stirrer of inner cities, can imagine the emotion, the adrenalin - whipping impact of this Black Eagle of the United Farm Workers Union on tens of thousands of young McGovern supporters. It has been, and is, to them a holy thing.

To them there is no union-picked lettuce if it doesn't have the Black Eagle label. Chavez's lettuce boycott has replaced the grape boycott as "The Crusade" which literally stirred the globe.

Well, now the Teamsters Brotherhood is slowly applying the brakes to the multi-million - dollar boycott.

Teamster president Frank (Fitz) Fitzsimmons and his colleagues have thousands of lettuce workers and scores of farm worker contracts. The lettuce boycott cuts into Teamsters' territory. It cuts down their deliveries. They have been quiet for a long time.

Now some of the Teamsters' younger California officials want to take Cesar on head to head, farm by farm, region by region. They want to launch a counterorganizing drive. They say Chavez, now with some 15,000 officially paying dues to the United Farm Workers Union (AFL-CIO) in Delano, has ambitions to take over jurisdiction of all agricultural workers from the Salinas lettuce and celery workers to the sugar cane cutters of Florida to the potato fields of Idaho to the migrant workers of New York's Long Island.

Their view is that Chavez is more symbol than substance, that his real financial and infrastructural support has come from the AFL-CIO, and that for years George Meany had authorized official AFL-CIO payments of $10,000 a month to Chavez and that his great strength is the support of his UFW by dedicated clergymen seeking to help the migratory poor.

Also some $19,200 a year has come from the California Labor Federation, more money and clothing and regular support from other unions. But the Teamsters now are saying they represent the handling of some 75 per cent of iceberg lettuce -- and Chavez handles only 10 per cent.

"It is ridiculous for Chavez to call a boycott of lettuce claiming most of it is non-union," says Einar Mohn, second vice president and influential head of the 459,000-member Western Conference of Teamsters.

And from Fitz has just come word that "I will not permit the drag-out boycott of all lettuce. Our people are happy with their contracts which are the best agrarian pacts in the world.

"This boycott of all lettuce has got to stop. We are going to protect our jurisdiction."

Thus, according to reliable sources, Fitz called a special off-the-record conference the night of Thursday, Nov. 2. No ordinary rap session, this.

The members of the inner circle were rather unusual. There was the fervent veteran of a hundred national labor conventions, Monsignor George Higgins and one of his superiors to speak for some of the clergy, and George Meany's representatives, the Electrical Brotherhood's secretary Joe Keenan who has been attempting to mediate in his gentle manner, and the self-effacing AFL-CIO attorney Al Woll; and Fitz, his special vice president Weldon Mathis, who doubles as the house intellectual, Einar Mohn and his Western associate Pete Andrade, head of the Teamsters' National Cannery and Frozen Food Division.

The Teamsters' position was that Chavez's small union sought to go beyond the harvesting jurisdiction into processing and crafting. The Teamsters wanted a hard pact and the end of the overall boycott.

If not, the Teamsters will take on Chavez - head on. Emotion will overrun the fields and highways. Trucks will rumble in and haul out produce, Black Eagle or no Black Eagle. And in the next few weeks - unless Chavez agrees to partition, according to some of those who were at the final peace session

Washington Merry-Go-Round

By Jack Anderson

WASHINGTON-- With Congress out of session, it's the junketing season for footloose congressmen, and our embassies around the world have been alerted to prepare for their care and feeding.

Out of political discretion, most congressmen put off their overseas trips until after the election. But now, they are preparing to take off for their favorite vacation spots in Europe and Asia-- on official business, of course, so they can charge their trips to the taxpayers.

Some of the trips, no doubt, will be worthwhile. In the world outside, where much of the U.S. budget is spent, visiting congressmen have uncovered waste, have learned firsthand of needed reforms and have written appropriate legislation. They have talked directly to the people of the world.

Such trips, with split-second schedules and heavy work loads, are anything but glamorous. But most junketeers contrive to arrange their overseas business at the world's pleasure spots.

Next week, for example, three giant Air Force C— 118 transport planes will haul Senate and House delegates to the North Atlantic Assembly in Bonn. The delegates will spend most of their time sightseeing, however, in such places as London, Paris, Rome, Madrid, Belgrade and Sofia.

A C— 118, we learned, can carry 80 passengers. Therefore, we wondered why it took three of the big planes to fly less than 40 Senate— House delegates to Europe. Even with their wives, they should be able to squeeze into one plane.

--Three Planes--

It is against "Senate policy," we were told, for more than 12 senators to fly on the same plane. Thus the Senate delegates have split into two groups, one headed by Sen. John Sparkman, D— Ala., the other by Sen. Stuart Symington, D— Mo. The House delegates, who apparently are more expendable, will risk

There will be no bunching, however, after they reach Germany. Separate cars have been requested for each congressman and his wife. An urgent cable has gone out to USCINCEUR (U.S. Commander- in- Chief, Europe), spelling out the House delegates' needs:

"Request 17 military sedans and drivers be made available during Codel's visit in Bonn, Germany. (The term Codel is government jargon for congressional delegation.) Also request a 2 1/2 ton truck meet Codel at airport for luggage and necessary assistance in baggage handling....

"Members of the party will be traveling on Department of the Army orders and are authorized military air, ground transportation and other logistic support to include PX and commissary facilities. Military air and ground transportation for wives of members accompanying their husbands for protocol reasons is authorized on a space available basis at no additional expense to the government...

"Please meet and render all assistance and courtesy." And this final note: "News media coverage not desired."

Representative Dave Martin, R— Neb., had a special request. The Pentagon asked "assistance in obtaining accomodations for Rep. Dave Martin and wife at the Von Steubon in Wiesbaden for 20-23 Nov., 1972, and any other necessary arrangements...."

--Special Tours--

The House group will go on to London, Madrid, Paris and Rome. Two tours are available to the senators. "For those senators, who do not plan to depart Bonn at the close of the conference on November 24 for Washington, nor to travel with Senatory Symington to Eastern Europe," advised Sparkman in a private memo to the other Senate delegates, "a European Theater plane has been scheduled to travel as follows, the purpose being to look into European security and trade issue...."

by their wives, will study "trade" and "security" in such popular tourist towns as Paris, London and Dublin. Symington's party, meanwhile, will fly behind the Iron Curtain to Belgrade, Sofia, Bucharest and Prague.

Those who have signed up tentatively to fly with Sparkman are: Senators Howard Cannon, D— Nev., B. Everett Jordan, D— N.C., Edward Kennedy, D— Mass., Thomas McIntyre, D— N.H., Ernest Hollings, D— S.C., Clifford Case, R— N.J., John Cooper, R— Ky., Marlow Cook, R— Ky., Ted Stevens, R— Alaska, and Henry Bellmon, R— Okla. Of these, Kennedy, McIntyre and Hollings told us they're still undecided whether to make the trip. Jordan thinks he "probably won't go."

The passenger manifest for the House trip includes: Representatives Wayne Hays, D— Ohio, chairman; Charles Chamberlain, R— Mich., Patrick Caffery, D— La., Leslie Arends, R— Ill., Peter Rodino, D— N.J., Frank Clark, D— Pa., Jack Brooks, D— Tex., Paul Findley, R— Ill., Samuel Devine, R— Ohio, Melvin Price, D— Ill., Bertram Podell, D- N.Y., Dave Martin, R Neb., Philip Burton, D— Calif., and Robert Mathias, R-Calif.

Arends tells us he has changed his mind about going. Chamberlain has not definitely made up his mind.

We will report on other junket plans in future columns. For when congressmen talk about going to the ends of the earth to help their constituents, they are being all

CHRISTMAS SEALS

Christmas gimmicks come and go. Most last only a few years and then disappear from the marketplace One important exception is the Christmas Sea campaign, which began 68 years ago in Denmark and is still going strong. The 1972 appeal, sponsored by the National Tuberculosis Association (TBA), will begin on Friday, Nov. 10. Money raised from the sale of penny Christmas seals will be used for tubercular and respiratory disease community services, public health centers, education and research.

A special Christmas stamp was the idea of a Danish post office worker named Einer Hobboell who, in 1904, sold them to raise money for a children's tuberculosis hospital. The same year, the National Tuberculosis Association was formed in the United States. At that time, most Americans believed that the disease was hopeless and money to care for the afflicted was scarce. Late in 1907, doctors at a small TB hospital in Delaware appealed to one Emily Bissell to help raise $300 to keep the institution open. It was Miss Bissell who, having read about the Danish experiment, decided to conduct a similar appeal in the United States.

The newspapers, the President, the Chief Justice of the United States, congressional leaders, prominent businessmen and churchmen spoke out in support of the Christmas Seal campaign, and urged people to buy as many one-cent stamps as they could afford. Around $3,000 was raised in the few days before Christmas, 1907. For the next two years, the American Red Cross sponsored a national Christmas Seal campaign. The National Tuberculosis Association joined the crusade in 1910 and took it over 10 years later.

In 1971, Christmas seals raised $36,089,632 to fight not only tuberculosis but also emphysema, bronchitis and other respiratory ailments. The National Tuberculosis Association reports that there were 35,217 new cases of TB last year, bringing the total number to at least 300,000. Even more serious, about 25,000 people died of emphysema in 1971. The respiratory disease rate has been growing faster than any other; TBA estimates that 12 per cent of the population could be afflicted.

ELECTION POSTMORTEMS

The shouting is by no means over when the votes are tallied in a national election campaign; in some ways, it hardly has begun. The returns are pored over by politicians and columnists intent on finding out what they mean. But the most interested parties of all, besides the winning and losing candidates, may well be the poll-takers. One of the best known, Louis Harris, will present his postmortem of the election at the National Press Club in Washington, D. C., on Friday, Nov. 10.

George Gallup observes in a recently published book (The Sophisticated Poll Watcher's Guide, 1972) that "The pressure in election polling to be 'right' is great; in fact almost overwhelming." He adds: "The researcher stands naked before the whole world the day after the election. Everyone knows how far off the mark the forecast has been. No one but the poll-taker risks his reputation to the same degree."

Public opinion samplers never tire of making the point that election polls should not be regarded as hard- and -fast predictions. Polls can be "disturbing," Harris has written, "if they are viewed as a permanent fix on American public opinion." They should be viewed instead, he believes, as "single snapshots at one point in time of a constantly moving picture, a subtle kaleidoscope of people reacting to their national crises and challenges."

It is possible for a poll to be "right" even if it picks the wrong nominee. This, according to John F. Kraft, is what happened in 1960, when the Kraft poll and the Gallup Poll predicted a Kennedy victory while Elmo Roper said Nixon would be the winner. "But Roper was actually closer to the right margin that separated the two than we were," Kraft said, "so although the public would say Gallup and Kraft were right and Roper was wrong, our fellow pollsters would have to say, 'Nice job, Gallup, nice job, Kraft, but Roper was better.'"

WHO STAYS MARRIED LONGER?

The man and wife with college degrees, or the wedded couple with high school diplomas or less--which pair is more likely to stay married?

A new study by the Census Bureau suggests that the higher the school of marriage partners, the less likely it is that they will get divorced.

Divorces apparently will hit a record in 1972, totaling about 840,000, or approximately 9 per cent more than the 768,000 divorces of 1971. But the Census Bureau found this:

--Where both husband and wife are college graduates, 90 per cent have been married only once.

--Where bith are high school graduates, 83 per cent have been married only once.

--Where neither husband nor wife graduated from high school, 75 per cent have been married just one time.

Income appears to be another significant factor when divorce figures are studied. The higher the income of a couple, the more likely that the two have been married only once.

Also turned up by the Census Bureau's study were these added clues to American marriage-divorce habits:

--The number of marriage is rising, up nearly 50 per cent from the early 1960s. But that is partly the result of the increase in divorces followed by remarriages.

--The proportion of women remaining single into their early 20s actually has increased by nearly one third. In 1960, only 28 per cent of woman 20 to 24 years old were still single, but now 37 per cent of that age group have never married.

--In the turbulent years of World War II, divorces rose, reaching a peak of 610,000 in 1946. After that, they declined to a low of 368,000 in 1958. Since then the trend had been upward.

--The rate nearly doubled in the 1960s. In 1961, divorces passed 400,000. In 1970, the 700,000 level was reached, and this year an estimated 840,000 divorces are expected.

--More first marriages are ending in divorce. In 1940, only 6.3 per cent of the first marriages of women in their early 30s had ended in divorce. By 1970, the divorce rate at that age group had risen to 15.8 per cent and, in 1971, about 16.8 per cent had been divorced after a first marriage.

The divorce rate of younger women has also been rising. For women in their early 20s, only 2.1 per cent of first marriages had ended in divorce in 1940, but in 1970 the rate had gone up to 6.3 per cent.

--The remarriage rate had been rising along with the divorce rate. The number of remarriages is now nearly 400 who have been divorced or widowed. In the 1950s, the remarriage digure was about 250 per 1,000.

However, the vast majority of Americans will have stable marriages. Of the 41 million couples in the U. S. in June, 1971, about 33 million -- or 81 per cent -- had been married only once. At the other end of the scale, there were nearly 200,000 couples -- about four tenths of 1 per cent -- of which each spouse had been married three or more times.

Among the once-married and now- single Americans in mid-1971, there were about 2.5 million men and some 4.5 million women who were divorced or separated. Another 5 million women were widows, while fewer than 1 million men were widowers which reflected the fact that women live longer than men.

Roger sat brooding in a bar, and finally confessed to the bartender: "Ralph, I'm a rat. I've got a lovely wife at home and instead of appreciating her, I've been carrying on with another woman. But I'm going home right now, and I'm going to tell her everything and beg her to forgive me."

Thereupon, Roger paid his tab, went home, told his wife everything and begged her to forgive him.

"I'll forgive you on one condition," his wife said. "I want to know the name of the woman." But Ralph gallantly refused to tell her.

"Was it Della Niven?" she asked.

"I can't tell you, dear," he said.

"I'll bet it was Mrs. Adams down the block."

My lips are sealed," said hubby.

"I know," said the wife. "It was that hussy, Mrs. Clark!"

The next day Roger was seated again at the bar, and as he sipped his drink, the bartender asked how he'd made out with his resolution of the night before. "Not bad," said Roger. "My wife didn't forgive me, but she gave me three good leads."

WE'RE FILING CLERKS

"Guide to Record Retention Requirements. Office of the Federal Register, National Archives and Records Branch, General Services Administration. Announcing the latest edition GUIDE TO RECORD RETENTION REQUIREMENTS Revised as of January 1,1968. This useful reference tool, compiled from U. S. Statutes and from regulations issued by the various Federal agencies is designed to assist industry and the general public with their record-keeping functions. It contains over 900 digests detailing the retention periods for the many types of records required to be kept under Federal laws and rules. The 'Guide' tells the user (1) what records must be kept (2) who must keep them and (3) how long they must be kept. Each digest contains a reference to the full text of the basic law or regulation providing for such retention. The booklet's index, numbering 2,000 items, lists for ready reference the categories of persons, companies, and products affected by the Federal record retention requirements. Rev. 1968 (85) P. GS.4.107/a: R 245/968. 40 cents."

Thus, for four new sandwich dimes, any citizen can acquire a guide to what his future requirements in filing cabinets will be, and presumably can protect himself from future incarceration for failure to comply in the retention of records. Some proof-reader must have goofed when the Government Printing Office set that notice in type. That can't be a 1968 revised guide. It is strictly 1984 vintage.

Two thousand items indexed? And we're responsible for plowing through 85 pages of fine print to determine who, what and how long? Heaven help us!!

Wouldn't it be a good idea to have a Presidential Commission or a Congressional Committee conduct a survey to determine how much private enterprise could produce to alleviate poverty in our land if it were not saddled with interminable and expensive bookkeeping chores and record retention requirements.

Thomas Jefferson once declared: "Were we directed from Washington when to sow and when to reap, we should soon want bread."

Bread maybe, but not paper. Record retention requirements will take care of that. Who has enough time to sow or reap? There are records to be filed.

TORPEDOING CONSUMER INTERESTS

Businessmen find themselves in opposition to many consumer protection measures for the reason that these propsoals often spring from a basic philosophy hostile to business. It is a philosophy that can see no common interest between consumers and businessmen in the perpetuation of smoothly functioning, highly productive business institutions.

Retail distributors the nation over, for example, have been confronted with a rising tide of consumer protectionism. In the flood of new proposals are measures that could cripple the ability of retailers to serve consumers. Among these are class action laws. Under the compelling push of antibusiness -- and in reality anticonsumer -- fanatics, class action proposals become rallying points for legalized warfare against retailers, manufacturers and virtually every business in the country that comes into contact with consumers. The "overkill" potential of class action legislation, under which consumers can band together by the thousands in damage suits against the retailers, in incalculable. Firms with the highest reputation for ethical business practices and financial strength would be made vulnerable to expensive and destructive suits for such acts as: Advertising at a price which is later found to be an incorrect comparative price; failure to comply with numberless state and federal agency regulations on labeling, weights and measures, hazardous substances, and so forth; allegedly deceptive practices such a packaging, sales claims, service claims, guarantees, quality claims. The list is endless.

Competent authorities have warned that a single class action suit of the foregoing nature could throw even a strong company into bankruptcy, and large companies will be the most attractive targets. Consumer protectionism that seeks to cripple business, rather than correct abuses, works directly against consumers -- not for them.

SINGLE CAR ACCIDENTS CUT 50% BY LANE LINES

Secondary roads which are marked according to Federal Highway Administration standards successfully improve safety ratios, according to a recent study of traffic accidents sponsored by Potters Industries, Inc. of Carlstadt, N.J.

"Test areas marked with double yellow center lines, white skip lines indicating passing zones and white edgelines, showed a 50 percent reduction in single car accidents where the road was previously unmarked," John P. Manley, executive vice president of Potters, reported.

"Where the road was previously marked with only a single white center line and edgelines, we found a 32 per cent reduction." Control roads which were not marked showed an increase of 38 per cent in single car accidents, he said. The test was made in West Milford, N. J. from May through August, 1971.

"END" OF A WAR

Negotiations between the U.S. and North Vietnam have set the stage for the end of one of the most miserable wars in history. It has been the longest conflict in our history and in many ways the most costly. Not only have thousands of brave men been killed or wounded but the nation has been left divided. Only the War Between the States left deeper internal wounds.

Fundamentally, the war in Indochina was wrong on our part, not because we had a basic cause to fight communism, which threatens to engulf Asia and the entire world, but because we did not commit ourselves to a policy of winning. The military, which did not make the decision to get into the war, wanted to win but it was constantly hamstrung by politicians who were too timid to win. If we were restrained because of a fear of Chinese or Russian intervention, then we should hot have been there in the first place. If our cause was just that, as several administrations seemed to think, then we should have dedicated ourselves to total victory. There has been no logic in our foreign policy in Vietnam. War is simply an extension of a nation's foreign policy.

It is not clear now what safeguards, if any, are built into the settlement. A negotiated peace may serve the communist cause more adequately than a clear- cut victory on the field of battle. Once our Air Force and Navy are withdrawn, Hanoi could find the pickings easy and take over most of Asia through subversion. It is a safe bet that whoever is in power in Washington will be reluctant to recommit our armed forces again. The future is grim but not hopeless. Internal strength and a reunion in spirit of all the people in this nation can overcome all odds. HLH

WASHINGTON — Had a new Democratic party flag been unfurled this past campaign, it would have had a head of lettuce, not the head of the traditional donkey on it.

When in the eerie dawn hours of the final dramatic tableau of the national convention Ted Kennedy stood arms raised with Sens. McGovern and Eagleton, he shouted. "Fellow lettuce boycotters," and the young delegates, though weary for lack of sleep, rejuvenated, roared and roared and Kennedy opined quietly he'd gotten off a great line.

And when my path crisscrossed that of Sarge Shriver in Colorado Oct. 4, the word flashed that he had bought and would personally carry five heads of Cesar Chavez's Black Eagle lettuce to his chartered aircraft. He said, "I've got to get some lettuce for the plane." None of this annual herb had been served because the charismatic huelga - shouting Cesar Chavez is running a national boycott of all lettuce which doesn't bear the Black Eagle stamp of his United Farm Workers (UFW).

Few who haven't been on the hustings, or in California, or who haven't listened to the 45-year-old disciple of Saul Alinsky, the later stirrer of inner cities, can imagine the emotion, the adrenalin - whipping impact of this Black Eagle of the United Farm Workers Union on tens of thousands of young McGovern supporters. It has been, and is, to them a holy thing.

To them there is no union-picked lettuce if it doesn't have the Black Eagle label. Chavez's lettuce boycott has replaced the grape boycott as "The Crusade" which literally stirred the globe.

Well, now the Teamsters Brotherhood is slowly applying the brakes to the multi-million - dollar boycott.

Teamster president Frank (Fitz) Fitzsimmons and his colleagues have thousands of lettuce workers and scores of farm worker contracts. The lettuce boycott cuts into Teamsters' territory. It cuts down their deliveries. They have been quiet for a long time.

Now some of the Teamsters' younger California officials want to take Cesar on head to head, farm by farm, region by region. They want to launch a counterorganizing drive. They say Chavez, now with some 15,000 officially paying dues to the United Farm Workers Union (AFL-CIO) in Delano, has ambitions to take over jurisdiction of all agricultural workers from the Salinas lettuce and celery workers to the sugar cane cutters of Florida to the potato fields of Idaho to the migrant workers of New York's Long Island.

Their view is that Chavez is more symbol than substance, that his real financial and infrastructural support has come from the AFL-CIO, and that for years George Meany had authorized official AFL-CIO payments of $10,000 a month to Chavez and that his great strength is the support of his UFW by dedicated clergymen seeking to help the migratory poor.

Also some $19,200 a year has come from the California Labor Federation, more money and clothing and regular support from other unions. But the Teamsters now are saying they represent the handling of some 75 per cent of iceberg lettuce -- and Chavez handles only 10 per cent.

"It is ridiculous for Chavez to call a boycott of lettuce claiming most of it is non-union," says Einar Mohn, second vice president and influential head of the 459,000-member Western Conference of Teamsters.

And from Fitz has just come word that "I will not permit the drag-out boycott of all lettuce. Our people are happy with their contracts which are the best agrarian pacts in the world.

"This boycott of all lettuce has got to stop. We are going to protect our jurisdiction."

Thus, according to reliable sources, Fitz called a special off-the-record conference the night of Thursday, Nov. 2. No ordinary rap session, this.

The members of the inner circle were rather unusual. There was the fervent veteran of a hundred national labor conventions, Monsignor George Higgins and one of his superiors to speak for some of the clergy, and George Meany's representatives, the Electrical Brotherhood's secretary Joe Keenan who has been attempting to mediate in his gentle manner, and the self-effacing AFL-CIO attorney Al Woll; and Fitz, his special vice president Weldon Mathis, who doubles as the house intellectual, Einar Mohn and his Western associate Pete Andrade, head of the Teamsters' National Cannery and Frozen Food Division.

The Teamsters' position was that Chavez's small union sought to go beyond the harvesting jurisdiction into processing and crafting. The Teamsters wanted a hard pact and the end of the overall boycott.

If not, the Teamsters will take on Chavez - head on. Emotion will overrun the fields and highways. Trucks will rumble in and haul out produce, Black Eagle or no Black Eagle. And in the next few weeks - unless Chavez agrees to partition, according to some of those who were at the final peace session

By Jack Anderson

WASHINGTON-- With Congress out of session, it's the junketing season for footloose congressmen, and our embassies around the world have been alerted to prepare for their care and feeding.

Out of political discretion, most congressmen put off their overseas trips until after the election. But now, they are preparing to take off for their favorite vacation spots in Europe and Asia-- on official business, of course, so they can charge their trips to the taxpayers.

Some of the trips, no doubt, will be worthwhile. In the world outside, where much of the U.S. budget is spent, visiting congressmen have uncovered waste, have learned firsthand of needed reforms and have written appropriate legislation. They have talked directly to the people of the world.

Such trips, with split-second schedules and heavy work loads, are anything but glamorous. But most junketeers contrive to arrange their overseas business at the world's pleasure spots.

Next week, for example, three giant Air Force C— 118 transport planes will haul Senate and House delegates to the North Atlantic Assembly in Bonn. The delegates will spend most of their time sightseeing, however, in such places as London, Paris, Rome, Madrid, Belgrade and Sofia.

A C— 118, we learned, can carry 80 passengers. Therefore, we wondered why it took three of the big planes to fly less than 40 Senate— House delegates to Europe. Even with their wives, they should be able to squeeze into one plane.

--Three Planes--

It is against "Senate policy," we were told, for more than 12 senators to fly on the same plane. Thus the Senate delegates have split into two groups, one headed by Sen. John Sparkman, D— Ala., the other by Sen. Stuart Symington, D— Mo. The House delegates, who apparently are more expendable, will risk by their wives, will study "trade" and "security" in such popular tourist towns as Paris, London and Dublin. Symington's party, meanwhile, will fly behind the Iron Curtain to Belgrade, Sofia, Bucharest and Prague.

There will be no bunching, however, after they reach Germany. Separate cars have been requested for each congressman and his wife. An urgent cable has gone out to USCINCEUR (U.S. Commander- in- Chief, Europe), spelling out the House delegates' needs:

"Request 17 military sedans and drivers be made available during Codel's visit in Bonn, Germany. (The term Codel is government jargon for congressional delegation.) Also request a 2 1/2 ton truck meet Codel at airport for luggage and necessary assistance in baggage handling....

"Members of the party will be traveling on Department of the Army orders and are authorized military air, ground transportation and other logistic support to include PX and commissary facilities. Military air and ground transportation for wives of members accompanying their husbands for protocol reasons is authorized on a space available basis at no additional expense to the government...

"Please meet and render all assistance and courtesy." And this final note: "News media coverage not desired."

Representative Dave Martin, R— Neb., had a special request. The Pentagon asked "assistance in obtaining accomodations for Rep. Dave Martin and wife at the Von Steubon in Wiesbaden for 20-23 Nov., 1972, and any other necessary arrangements...."

--Special Tours--

The House group will go on to London, Madrid, Paris and Rome. Two tours are available to the senators. "For those senators, who do not plan to depart Bonn at the close of the conference on November 24 for Washington, nor to travel with Senatory Symington to Eastern Europe," advised Sparkman in a private memo to the other Senate delegates, "a European Theater plane has been scheduled to travel as follows, the purpose being to look into European security and trade issue...."

Signed up to fly with Symington are: Senators Frank Moss, D— Utah, Claiborne Pell, D— R.I., Gaylord Nelson, D— Wis., Thomas Eagleton, D— Mo., John Tunney, D— Calif., Lloyd Bentsen, D— Tex., Gordon Allott, R— Colo., Jacob Javits, R— N.Y., and Jack Miller, R-Iowa. In this group, only Pell was uncertain whether he would go.

The passenger manifest for the House trip includes: Representatives Wayne Hays, D— Ohio, chairman; Charles Chamberlain, R— Mich., Patrick Caffery, D— La., Leslie Arends, R— Ill., Peter Rodino, D— N.J., Frank Clark, D— Pa., Jack Brooks, D— Tex., Paul Findley, R— Ill., Samuel Devine, R— Ohio, Melvin Price, D— Ill., Bertram Podell, D- N.Y., Dave Martin, R Neb., Philip Burton, D— Calif., and Robert Mathias, R-Calif.

Arends tells us he has changed his mind about going. Chamberlain has not definitely made up his mind.

We will report on other junket plans in future columns. For when congressmen talk about going to the ends of the earth to help their constituents, they are being all

Area Scouts Attend National Meeting

Seven Girl Scout adults and two Senior Girl Scouts from the Cotton Boll Area Girl Scout Council joined more than 8,000 delegates, visitors and friends of girl scouting from 362 councils at the 39th National Council meeting Oct. 22-25 in Dallas, Tex.

By an overwhelming standing vote, convention delegates adopted a new version of the Girl Scout promise and laws.

The new version is the result of a three- year study by a 10- member Girl Scout volunteer and staff task group, designated to ascertain the contemporary relevance of the traditional wording.

The delegation approved 14- year- old Girl Scouts as official elected delegates to future National Council meetings.

Throughout the four- day meeting, focus was on the new Girl Scout objectives and goals for the period of 1973-75 "to anticipate and initiate change, to build a dynamic, representative membership actively involved in its enrichment and change and to develop appropriate supprot to assure its increasing effectiveness as a voluntary organization." the new triennium theme is "Today's Vision -- Tomorrow's World."

Those attending from the Cotton Boll Council included four official delegates, Mrs. Frank Dorroh of Caruthersville, Mrs. Joe Dye of Sikeston, Mrs. Bud Latessy of Poplar Bluff and Mrs. Thurston Hill of Dexter.

The two senior scouts attending were Miss Cathy Richardson, senior scout participant, and Miss Nancy Latessy, senior scout visitor, both of Poplar Bluff.

The three Cotton Boll professional staff members attended as official visitors. They were Miss Ilena Aslin, executive director, and Miss Doris Brown, both of Sikeston, and Mrs. Robert Bess, of Poplar Bluff, field advisor.

Adopted Child Is Obsessed About Finding Blood Parents

Dear Ann Landers: The people who adopted me are the only parents I have ever known. They have been wonderful and everyone tells me how lucky I am.

But there's this big blank in my life. I need to find my real parents. I have to know what the circumstances were that made them give me away. My imagination runs wild when I think about what might have happened that made them abandon me.

I think about these things more and more. It's getting so that I don't think about anything else. I have to learn the truth about myself so I can stop brooding. Don't tell me to forget it because I can't. I need some advice.--- Confused In Chicago

Dear Confused: It is natural for an adopted child to wonder about his blood parents-- but you sound obsessed. If you were adopted through a legitimate agency it was agreed at the time that the identity of your natural parents would never be revealed-- and with good reason. Usually when an adopted child locates his natural parents it means trouble-- both for the child and for the adoptive parents. I won't tell you to "forget it" but I do hope for the sake of everyone concerned that you will not make this your life's goal. Do yourself a favor and divert your thoughts to something more productive and less hazardous.

Dear Ann Landers: Your column is an instruction course in good sense, good judgment and good manners. Will you please print these basic rules for the issuing of invitations? So far as I know, nobody has ever done it.

1. Write or telephone. Don't ask a third party to relay the message. It's an insult at worst and at best, an indication that you didn't care enough to do it yourself.

2. If you get a refusal, don't ask why or make the person feel uncomfortable about not accepting. Say, "I hope we will see you another time."

3. It is always appreciated if you mention others who have accepted. People like to know who else will be present and are often reluctant to ask. 4. If your invitations are refused more than twice, take the hint. They do not wish to get involved with you socially.--- We Like Gracious Living

Dear Gracious: I go along with 1- 2- 3 but not 4. I can tell you from personal experience that I've had to refuse invitations (more than twice) from people I enjoy. A third or fourth refusal need not mean they don't wish to "get involved with you socially."

Dear Ann Landers: Your response to "I Hate Medicine" drove me to write.

Your suggestion that parents, when they don't feel well, should keep it to themselves and not let their children know, was nutty. I have eight children, six still at home, and I have plenty of splitting headaches. Why shouldn't I let the kids know? Usually they are the cause.

The younger generation's motto, "Tell it like it is," is a good one. Rethink your answer and change your advice.--- No Phoney Baloney

Dear N.P.: Children are the world's best imitators. Invariably they take on the physical symptoms they hear discussed at home. Mothers who complain of "cramps" will have daughters who will do the same. Fathers with frequent backaches will have sons with frequent backaches.

There's a difference between "telling it like it is" and telling more than people need to know. Discretion is the greater part of valor.

Mrs. Glynn D. James

James-Vanpool

Wedding vows uniting Miss Sheila Vanpool and Glynn D. James were exchanged Oct. 20 at 8 p.m. at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Dudley Hiles at 945 Cambridge. The Rev. Lee Fansler performed the double-ring ceremony before a gathering of relatives and friends.

The bride is the daughter of Mrs. Billie Hiles of Sikeston and Bobby Vanpool of Bertrand. The groom is the son of Mrs. Neva Jewell James of Charleston and the late Rev. Bennie F. James.

Two brass, arched candelabras with 14 white, burning candles and two arrangements of blue carnations graced each side of the couple.

The candles were lit by Dudley Hiles.

Lora Richardson of Poplar Bluff provided piano music. "More" was sung by Carolyn Jones, also of Poplar Bluff. Miss Richardson also played the traditional wedding march and the recessional.

The bride chose for her wedding a formal gown of white, sheer organza and re-embroidered Alencon lace. The high neckline and empire bodice was richly trimmed with re-embroidered Alencon lace extending over the shoulder line and onto the sheer, camelot sleeves and finished with cuffs trimmed with the same lace. The A-line silhouette skirt was of sheer organza, softly gathered, tracing the bottom of the skirt. Her double, floor-length mantilla of bridal illusion was edged with matching lace and was held secure with a Queen Anne tiara completely overlaid with lace.

Miss Carolyn Jones of Poplar Bluff was maid of honor. She wore a blue velvet, street-length dress trimmed with white lace. The flower girl was Miss Hope Cline of Florissant. She wore a blue and white-flowered, floor- length dress of sheer organza.

Mrs. Hiles, mother of the bride, wore blue and a corsage of carnations.

Mrs. James selected a royal blue dress with navy accessories and a corsage also of carnations.

Miss Diane Vanpool, sister of the bride, presided over the guest book.

Following the ceremony, a reception was held at the home. The serving table was covered with a white lace tablecloth, and the centerpiece was a two-tiered wedding cake topped with a bride and groom. Flanked on each side were two brass candelabras holding burning white candles. At one side was a crystal punch bowl. Servers were Mrs. Mary Winkle and Mrs. Richard A. Cline.

After a short wedding trip, the couple is at home in Bertrand.

The new Mrs. James is a 1971 graduate of Charleston High School and is employed by Wal-Mart Discount City in Sikeston.

James, a 1972 graduate of Charleston High School, is employed by Missouri Utilities of Charleston.

Out-of-town guests for the ceremony were: Carolyn Jones and Lora Richardson of Poplar Bluff, Mr. and Mrs. Richard Cline and family of Florissant, Mrs. Paul Pulliam and daughter Carla of Dexter and Mr. and Mrs. J. A. Richardson and family of Van Buren.

College To Play At SHS

Southeast Missouri State University of Cape Girardeau will stage an exhibition basketball game at Sikeston High School Fieldhouse Saturday night.

Larry Lawrence, an all-state star for the SHS Bulldogs in 1969-70, will be among four former SeMo prep stars to participate for the Indians.

Lawrence will suit up for his first season at SEMS after completing two successful seasons at Three Rivers Community College. In his freshman year, the 6-foot-3 sharpshooter helped lead the Raiders to fourth place in the national junior college tournament.

At Southeast, Lawrence will join three other members of the TRCC cage team which placed in the national event. Oran's Fred Johnson, Leonard Bishop of Matthews and Scott County Central's Paul Hale each will be in uniform for the Tribe Saturday night.

Admission is free for the 7:30 p.m. event which will match Coach Bob Cradic's varsity against the junior varsity. Cradic is the former TRCC coach and led the Richland Rebels through one season.

Big Red Face Champs

DALLAS — The Football Cardinals move to the road again Sunday for one of their toughest tests of the season when they tangle with the defending Super Bowl champion Dallas Cowboys before a crowd of more than 65,000 in Texas Stadium.

Kickoff for the first of two 1972 meetings between the NFC Eastern Division rivals will be at 1 p.m.

The Big Red's winless streak reached four games last week as the team battled the Philadelphia Eagles to a 6-6 tie in Philadelphia. Cardinal placekicker Jim Bakken registered the Cardinals' only points on field goals from nine and 32 yards out, but missed a 27-yarder with 12 seconds left in the game. The Cardinals are now 2-5-1 for the season.

Offensively, the Big Red was paced by running back John Roland, who gained 77 yards on the ground in 12 carries. Quarterback Tim Van Galder was seven of 14 in the passing department for 106 yards with Donny Anderson, Fred Hyatt and Jackie Smith hauling in two catches apiece. The big defensive play was recorded by linebacker Larry Stallings, who prevented an Eagle touchdown by recovering a Philadelphia fumble on the Cardinal one-yard-line.

Dallas will take a 6-2 record into the game, but the Cowboys still trail the first-place Washington Redskins by a game in the NFC East. The Cowboys kept on the winning trail last week by storming in front of San Diego, 31-0, then holding on for a 34-28 victory.

Following the game, the Cardinals will play four of their remaining five games at home. The first comes next week when the Big Red entertains the New York Giants. Tickets are available for all four of the games and are on sale at the Cardinal Ticket Office, 200 Stadium Plaza, St. Louis, Mo. 63102. Single tickets only remain for the home game with the Cowboys on Dec. 3.

IOWA CITY, Iowa (AP) — Iowa's Frank Lauterbur will coach in the Blue-Gray All-Star football game at Montgomery, Ala., Dec. 27.

Lauterbur and Kansas State's Vince Gibson will coach the Blue team with Lauterbur handling the defense and Gibson the offense.

KINGSTON, Ont. (AP) — The West German national team collected its first victory in a four-game exhibition tour against teams from the Ontario Hockey Association Senior A league Wednesday night by downing the Kingston Aces 4-3.

Golf

ACAPULCO, Mexico — Cesar Sanudo of Mexico and Allen Miller of Pensacola, Fla. matched five-under-par 67s and tied for the lead after the first round of the $45,000 Bing Crosby Fiesta International Golf Tournament.

MITSUKAIDO, Japan—Hsieh Min-Nan of Taiwan ripped a five-under-par 67 in the final round of the Bridgestone Tournament to total 276 for 72 holes and record a three stroke triumph over Brian Allin of Santa Barbara, Calif., and Kuo Chi-Hsiung of Taiwan.

SAN ANTONIO, Tex.—Mike Hill held off a challenge from Lee Trevino, carded a final round 69 and took the $25,000 first prize at the Texas Open.

APOPKA, Fla.—Jane Blalock holed a 25-foot birdie putt on the third hole of sudden death play to defeat Kathy Whitworth and Sandra Palmer in the Lady Errol PGA Championship.

Eight Seniors In Final

The long season finally draws to a close Friday night at Public School Stadium as the Sikeston Bulldogs play Union City, Tenn., for the first time.

Sikeston will bring a 3-6 record into the contest against a foe ranked 11th among Tennessee high school teams last year. Many starters are gone from that 9-2 group, but UCHS still features a strong offense and a tough defense.

Gone from that team is All-State quarterback Dan Drerp. But, in 190-pound Barry James, Union City has a fine running threat.

"They will outweigh us about 20 pounds per man," Coach Pete Cirrintano said. But, the Bulldogs are just about used to that by now.

Union City runs the ball from the power-I offensive formation most of the time. Earlier in the year, the passing game produced little, but the running game carried the team. Lately, the passing has picked up and the running remains strong.

Last week Sikeston lost a squeaker to Poplar Bluff, 14-8. In the contest, five starters were missing. Just two will return this week for Sikeston, Jesse Smith and Roy Yarber. Roy has missed two games because of an ankle injury he sustained in the Cape Girardeau Central contest.

Seven seniors will be playing their final gridiron contest for the Red and Black. All seven are starters and all seven are solid contenders for all-conference teams. The seven are: quarterback Bill Colwick, tailback Curtis Bean, defensive end Aaron Yarber, offensive tackle David Alberson, defensive tackle Mike Irwin, linebacker Roy Yarber and split end Glen Guttenfelder, who will miss the contest.

Guttenfelder's loss hurt mightily in the loss to the Mules. Because of his absence, Sikeston threw just seven times for 32 yards.

Earlier in the week, Cirrintano noted Sikeston could be 6-3 instead of 3-6 and his sentiments are sound. Three Sikeston losses this year have been by two scores or less.

A costly penalty and a breakdown on punt coverage cost Sikeston the Perryville game. A blocked punt with a minute and a half to go cost Sikeston the Kennett game, even though the "Big Red" had dominated play only to lose, 12-7.

Then, PB marched down to score the winner last week with 18 seconds to go to hand the Dogs a heart-breaking loss.

However, the team has never given up and continues to show spirited play. UCHS, like every other Bulldog opponent this year, will know it has been in a ballgame.

Tigers 'Must Play Best'

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Scouts from a variety of bowl games will be frequenting Big Eight stadiums again this weekend as the clubs continue to head for that showdown battle between Oklahoma and Nebraska Thanksgiving Day.

Scouts from the Sugar, Orange, Cotton and Liberty bowls will be at Ames when Iowa State hosts Nebraska. It will be the third time in four weeks that Liberty Bowl representatives have watched the Cyclones.

Bowl scouts will also be in Norman when the Oklahoma Sooners host the Missouri Tigers.

Tiger Coach Al Onofrio said last night his club's 14th place rating in the national polls is fine, but it won't impress the seventh-rated Sooners.

"We must play better than we have all year," Onofrio said. "Oklahoma has a fine running game, with Greg Pruitt and Leon Crosswhite, and the Sooners are passing out of a double wing formation."

Onofrio ran his club through a 90-minute drill—longer than originally planned. He said he would wait until Thursday night to make a firm commitment on a starting lineup. The Tigers will work out Thursday night in Columbia, then Friday afternoon at OU's Owens Field.

Kansas Coach Don Fambrough praised the spirit of his Jayhawks Wednesday.

"Our victory over Oklahoma State did a lot of things for our team in a lot of ways," Fambrough said. "They felt they beat a good team, and feel confident they've got a chance to beat Colorado."

Fambrough said running back Vince O'Neil's performance against the Cowboys meant a great deal to the KU running game.

He also reported that linebacker Randy Robinson and defensive back Steve Taylor were doubtful starters at Colorado because of injuries. He said running backs Robert Miller and Delvin Williams, and defensive back Denny Lantz would be ready to play.

At Lincoln, Husker Coach Bob Devaney said Wednesday he would continue running Johnny Rodgers in motion — as he's done increasingly this year.

"When he goes in motion, someone has to go with him," Devaney said. "Often when Rodgers goes in motion, it causes two defenders to shift toward his side, thus leaving the mismatch on the weak side."

And Devaney explained the Huskers were throwing more long passes this year because "we've got some receivers this year who can get deep."

At Ames, Iowa State Coach Johnny Majors drilled his club on the university baseball field because of muddy conditions of regular practice fields.

The 90-minute workout included some controlled contact drills.

"Nebraska does just about everything well, offensive and defensively," Majors warned. "Dave Humm is a very good throwing quarterback and wingback Johnny Rodgers is a super-dangerous threat anytime he gets his hands on the football."

Kansas State Coach Vince Gibson released an injury list that continues to grow. Included previously as being out for Saturday's homecoming game with Oklahoma State were starters Bill Holman, Clayton Ferguson, Charles Clarington and Gary Glatz. Defensive end John O'Neill and linebacker Gary Melcher were added to the list when they sustained or aggravated injuries in Wednesday's practice.

TOKYO (AP) — Frank Shorter of the United States, the Munich Olympic marathon gold medalist, has been invited to run in the seventh international marathon at Kukuoka City, southern Japan, Dec. 3, the Japan Track and Field Association announced Thursday.

Shorter was the winner of last year's race in two hours, 12 minutes and 50.4 seconds. He won the Olympic race in 2:12.19.7. The race is 26 miles, 384 yards.

Eight Seniors In Final

The long season finally draws to a close Friday night at Public School Stadium as the Sikeston Bulldogs play Union City, Tenn., for the first time.

Sikeston will bring a 3-6 record into the contest against a foe ranked 11th among Tennessee high school teams last year. Many starters are gone from that 9-2 group, but UCHS still features a strong offense and a tough defense.

Gone from that team is All-State quarterback Dan Drerp. But, in 190-pound Barry James, Union City has a fine running threat.

"They will outweigh us about 20 pounds per man," Coach Pete Cirrintano said. But, the Bulldogs are just about used to that by now.

Union City runs the ball from the power-I offensive formation most of the time. Earlier in the year, the passing game produced little, but the running game carried the team. Lately, the passing has picked up and the running remains strong.

Last week Sikeston lost a squeaker to Poplar Bluff, 14-8. In the contest, five starters were missing. Just two will return this week for Sikeston, Jesse Smith and Roy Yarber. Roy has missed two games because of an ankle injury he sustained in the Cape Girardeau Central contest.

Seven seniors will be playing their final gridiron contest for the Red and Black. All seven are starters and all seven are solid contenders for all-conference teams. The seven are: quarterback Bill Colwick, tailback Curtis Bean, defensive end Aaron Yarber, offensive tackle David Alberson, defensive tackle Mike Irwin, linebacker Roy Yarber and split end Glen Guttenfelder, who will miss the contest.

Guttenfelder's loss hurt mightily in the loss to the Mules. Because of his absence, Sikeston threw just seven times for 32 yards.

Then, PB marched down to score the winner last week with 18 seconds to go to hand the Dogs a heart-breaking loss.

Twenty-four Junior Girl Scouts from Troop 272 spent two afternoons compiling statistics on a Sikeston Community Attitude Survey conducted recently. The girls tallied over 400 questionnaires containing 43 questions each. The information will be used by the city and Chamber of Commerce to show public opinion of Sikeston businesses. Junior Girl Scout Leader Mrs. Joan Cowell, left, and assistant leader Jana Moyers, right, collect questionnaires for James Huff, center, city manager.

1,300 Enrolled In Delta Head Start

PORTAGEVILLE — Some 1,300 pre- school children from six Bootheel counties of Southeast Missouri are enrolled in the sixth annual session of the Delta Head Start program, a cooperative educational effort of the Delta Area Economic Opportunity Corporation and the University of Missouri Extension Division.

Counties included in the program are Dunklin, Mississippi, New Madrid, Pemiscot, Scott and Stoddard.

More than 6,000 children have graduated from Head Start over the past five years and, like those before them, the new class of 4 and 5- year-olds is being introduced to such new life experiences as:

--A classroom and teachers;

-- Breakfast, a morning snack and a noon meal Monday through Friday;

--A medical checkup that includes a blood test, tuberculosis screening, polio and measles vaccine, small pox innoculation and shots for diphtheria, whooping cough and tetanus.

--A visit to the dentist where the child's teeth are cleaned and fluoridated, and additional services such as x-rays, fillings, extractions, crowns and treatment of infections, if needed.

This fall the program has 21 centers in operation over the six- county area. A total of 66 classes with a maximum size of 20 students each are in session from mid- October through May. Some centers are larger than others, ranging from one to six classes.

Director of the over-all program is Mike Cooper, a former public school teacher and a native of Kennett.

"We believe we have one of the most successful federally-funded Head Start programs in the country," he said. He credits its five- year success to the entire Head Start staff, enthusiasm of the parents, support of Delta area citizens and assistance from the University of Missouri Extension Division.

"We have had free access to university resource persons in a variety of fields such as education, medicine, sociology, youth, child development and nutrition. The university personnel have been invaluable," he said.

The program is funded by a $1.1- million grant from the U.S. Department of Health, Education and Welfare through the Delta Area Economic Opportunity Corporation.

At the beginning of each school year a medical history is filled out on each child by a Head Start nurse and records remain with the child throughout his school years.

Mrs. Jeanne Littell, nurse coordinator, said that usually a nurse goes to the child's home and talks with the parents to get the required preliminary information.

"Parents are asked to choose a doctor," Mrs. Littell said. "This is an important step-- it establishes a doctor for the family and makes the program much more a family affair than if a physician were chosen for them."

Appointments are set up with the doctor and dentist. Parents are urged to take their child themselves, but if they cannot, the Head Start nurse does it for them.

The Head Start dietician-nutritional director, Mrs. Dorothy Wagner, has a big job planning meals for 1,200 children scattered over 21 centers.

She plans a master menu. Through good buying and management practices, the food program is budgeted at 50 cents per child per day. Her detailed diets and recipes are used in Head Start programs across the nation.

Much of the food is aimed at helping the child establish lifetime eating habits for good health. Meals are planned around four basic food groups: milk, cheese and other dairy products; fruits and vegetables; breads and cereals; and meat, fish and eggs.

"These menus include all the vitamins, minerals and proteins needed for good growth and strong healthy bodies," she explained.

Continuing education programs in meal planning, buying and preparing food are conducted for parents and cooks at the centers.

In addition, more than 100 parents are hired each year as Head Start teachers, and 80 to 90 employes over- all enroll in college credit courses offered under the program.

Centers are located at Bell City, Bernie, Campbell, Caruthersville, Charleston, Dexter, East Prairie, Hayti, Kennett, North Lilbourn, Malden, Big Ridge, Benton, New Madrid, North Pemiscot, Portageville, Sikeston, Holcomb, Southland, Senath-Hornersville- Rives, and Richland.

Head Start headquarters are located at 223 King Ave., Portageville.

Other program directors and coordinators are Harold Norton and Frank Crail, educational; John Porter, social services; Dr. Alan Gubin, medical; Dr. William Dillon, dental; Joyce King, career development; Rosa Lee Quick, health assistant; Nancy Kaiser, nutrition coordinator; and Charles Brandon, Head Start coordinator.

1,300 Enrolled In Delta Head Start

PORTAGEVILLE — Some 1,300 pre- school children from six Bootheel counties of Southeast Missouri are enrolled in the sixth annual session of the Delta Head Start program, a cooperative educational effort of the Delta Area Economic Opportunity Corporation and the University of Missouri Extension Division.

Counties included in the program are Dunklin, Mississippi, New Madrid, Pemiscot, Scott and Stoddard.

More than 6,000 children have graduated from Head Start over the past five years and, like those before them, the new class of 4 and 5-year-olds is being introduced to such new life experiences as:

--A classroom and teachers;

-- Breakfast, a morning snack and a noon meal Monday through Friday;

--A medical checkup that includes a blood test, tuberculosis screening, polio and measles vaccine, small pox innoculation and shots for diphtheria, whooping cough and tetanus.

--A visit to the dentist where the child's teeth are cleaned and fluoridated, and additional services such as x-rays, fillings, extractions, crowns and treatment of infections, if needed.

This fall the program has 21 centers in operation over the six- county area. A total of 66 classes with a maximum size of 20 students each are in session from mid- October through May. Some centers are larger than others, ranging from one to six classes.

Director of the over-all program is Mike Cooper, a former public school teacher and a native of Kennett.

"We believe we have one of the most successful federally-funded Head Start programs in the country," he said. He credits its five- year success to the entire Head Start staff, enthusiasm of the parents, support of Delta area citizens and assistance from the University of Missouri Extension Division.

"We have had free access to university resource persons in a variety of fields such as education, medicine, sociology, youth, child development and nutrition. The university personnel have been invaluable," he said.

The program is funded by a $1.1- million grant from the U.S. Department of Health, Education and Welfare through the Delta Area Economic Opportunity Corporation.

Two Cabinet Posts, Several Federal Jobs Involved In Major Nixon Shakeup

KEY BISCAYNE, Fla. (AP) — Two or more Cabinet posts and dozens of White House and other key federal jobs are involved in President Nixon's tentative plans for a major second-term shakeup of the government's executive branch.

The scope of the President's plan, which he will develop in conferences with top aides at his Florida home here during the next four days, became clear within hours after he swept to landslide re-election.

Nixon summoned White House aides, the Cabinet and agency heads to a series of meetings Wednesday to deliver this message:

The second Nixon administration will stress economy and efficiency as well as responsiveness to the President's wishes. As a first step in revitalizing and reorganizing offices under his control, he wants standby resignations from all his appointees.

The White House said the President has made no decisions on what resignations to accept. But even before Tuesday's election, two early departures from his Cabinet were signaled.

Housing Secretary George Romney said in August, during a flap over federal aid to Pennsylvania flood victims, he would resign from the Cabinet. "The President urged me to stay on until after the election, and I agreed to do so," Romney said.

Melvin R. Laird has said repeatedly he would quit as secretary of Defense at the end of Nixon's first term, adding that nobody should head the Pentagon for more than four years.

Sources have said that two other Cabinet members, Labor Secretary J. D. Hodgson and Atty. Gen. Richard G. Kleindienst, have indicated some interest in leaving their high-pressure posts.

Administration officials stressed, however, that none of the Cabinet members is being forced out by Nixon.

Some lower-level officials, however, might find themselves suddenly looking for new jobs. White House officials have expressed some displeasure with the lack of support Nixon's proposals have received from the middle levels of some agencies.

Sources indicated there's still another, unspoken reason behind Nixon's shakeup move— the President's desire to reward selected officials of his campaign organization.

High on this list would be campaign Director Clark MacGregor, reported to be in line for a Cabinet or other high-level government post if he wants it.

Likewise, Nixon has deep respect for the ability of formero Treasury Secretary John B. Connally, who headed the Democrats-for-Nixon organization. Connally probably could have virtually any Cabinet post, but says he wants none.

For a while, Connally and New York Gov. Nelson A. Rockefeller were rumored as possible successors to Secretary of State William P. Rogers. But Rogers, a long-time Nixon associate, has shown no inclination to leave his post early in a second term.

Neither has Henry A. Kissinger, star of a galaxy of White House officials, said publicly what he plans to do in second term. But there is little question that the job of chief foreign-policy adviser is his for as long as he wants it.

One of Kissinger's colleagues, presidential consultant John Scali, is reported planning to take a nongovernment job. So is Nixon's director of communications, Herbert G. Klein. But no plans have been disclosed.

And some middle-level White House aides are known to be eyeing private jobs because of the hectic 12-hour days and seven-day weeks.

The President's reorganization steps come against a backdrop of published reports linking such key White House aides as chief of staff H. R. Haldeman and appointments secretary Dwight Chapin to the controversy over the Watergate bugging incident and alleged Republican efforts to sabotage the Democratic presidential campaign.

But other White House officials say Chapin and Haldeman retain Nixon's full confidence and are expected to remain during the second term.

Nixon's top domestic aide, John D. Ehrlichman, has indicated interest in becoming attorney general if Kleindienst decides to return to private law practice, sources say.

Laird, Romney, Rogers and Transportation Secretary John A. Volpe have been in the Cabinet since Nixon's inauguration in 1969. George P. Shultz was in the original Cabinet as Labor secretary but later became budget director and was named Treasury secretary last May after Connally resigned.

As successor to Laird, Deputy Secretary Kenneth Rush, seems a possible choice. Rush, who was a law professor at Duke University when Nixon studied there, came to the Pentagon after serving as U.S. ambassador to West Germany.

Speculation about a successor for Romney has centered on Samuel C. Jackson, now assistant HUD secretary for community planning and management, and Donald Rumsfeld, director of the Cost of Living Council. Another name mentioned is that of Walter E. Washington, the Washington mayor, who has had wide experience in the housing field.

Jackson, a black, stumped the country extensively for the GOP ticket.

Appointment of Rush and either Jackson or Rumsfeld would fit the pattern of the first Nixon term: a tendency to keep things within the official family.

When Robert H. Finch relinquished the HEW post, Elliot H. Richardson, then undersecretary of State, succeeded him. James D. Hodgson was undersecretary of Labor before being named to the Cabinet.

Rogers C. B. Morton was Republican national chairman when he was selected to replace Walter J. Hickel as secretary of the Interior. Hickel's ouster by Nixon on Nov. 25, 1970, was the only Cabinet change marked by any public rancor.

Rogers has ducked recent questions about his post-election intent; there is no evidence that he has been confiding with State Department associates about the future. But should he leave, there is a chance HEW Secretary Richardson would get the nod.

Like Rogers, he is a team player and will do whatever Nixon asks him to do. He long has hankered to return to the State Department, but he has unfinished business at he Department of Health, Education and Welfare.

Insiders say he hopes he will have 18 more months at HEW before he is faced with a decision on State, if the call comes.

John Volpe says he likes his job as secretary of Transportation and will stay on as long as the President wishes, although perhaps not for a full four years. There have been published reports that Helen Bentley, chairman of the Maritime Commission, would like to succeed him.

Earl Butz, named secretary of Agriculture when Clifford M. Hardin resigned in November 1971, is another who campaigned vigorously for Nixon, speaking two or three or more times weekly throughout the year.

Butz relishes politics, and seems likely to stay on for the time being. Some members of Congress regard Butz as somewhat abrasive, which might be a factor in Nixon's decision whether to keep him in office.

Laird has been vague about his plans. He regards himself as knowledgable on health, education and welfare matters because of long service on House appropriations panels dealing with them. Thus he might like to switch to HEW should Richardson move out.

Elsewhere in Nixon's official family, Chairman Herbert Stein of the Council of Economic Advisers, plans to take a teaching position at the University of Virginia next year. He probably will be succeeded as chairman by one of the other two members, Ezra Solomon or Marina Whitman, the first woman member.

At the Environmental Protection Agency, Administrator William T. Ruckelshaus has walked a tightrope since the agency's inception in December 1970. His decisions at times have been in conflict with powerful industries and powerful administration officials.

There has been no solid indication that he is on the way out, but if it were to happen it would be no great surprise.

Always hold the door you want it slammed in your open for a woman — unless face.

Ryan Gets Suspended Sentence At Benton

BENTON — Allen Joseph Ryan received a suspended two-year sentence in Circuit Court Monday on stealing charges.

His sentence was suspended and he was placed on probation on condition he obey the laws, pay costs, not use drugs other than those prescribed by a doctor, not to spend any time in taverns and not to associate with any person charged with a felony. Ryan was charged with stealing personal items from the Sikeston R-6 School District on Sept. 14.

Counsel was appointed to defend Bobby Joe Finley on a charge of armed robbery on Aug. 27.

Case was passed until today for Leon Wilder. He is charged with escaping jail on Sept. 8.

Nixon Foresees Major Reforms In Second Term

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Nixon foresees an exciting second term in which he will press major reforms for a trimmer federal government and foster more self-reliance by the American people.

And he hopes, Nixon said, to lead the nation out of a crisis of the spirt—"the whole era of permissiveness"—toward "a new feeling of responsibility, a new feeling of self-discipline."

The Washington Star-News quoted Nixon today on his philosophy of government and his outlook for the next four years in a copyrighted story by Garnett D. Horner, its veteran White House correspondent.

Horner interviewed Nixon at San Clemente, Calif, for nearly an hour last Sunday.

Nixon referred only briefly to the current Vietnam negotiations. "I am completely confident that we are going to have a settlement. You can bank on it," he said.

On foreign policy generally, he likewise forecast "an exciting period" ahead though not "as spectacular as the year 1972" with its Moscow and Peking summits.

He said his second term will accomplish more than the first in foreign affairs because it will build on his initial steps. He spoke for forthcoming negotiations concerning Europe, of more strategic arms cut talks with the Soviets, of a fresh effort for a Mideast settlement.

Mainly Nixon dealt with the domestic scene, indicating a conservative—he called it basically centrist—course for the next four years.

Going beyond Wednesday's White House announcement of a planned shakeup in the administration's executive staff, Nixon said:

"If you look at the Nixon proposals in the first four years ... when you look at them over the next four years, this will be known as an administration which advocated—and if we get proper support in the Congress after the election, was able to accomplish more significant reform then any administration since Franklin Roosevelt's in 1932; but in a different direction.

"Roosevelt's reforms led to bigger and bigger power in Washington ...

"The reforms that we are instituting are ones which will diffuse the power throughout the country and which will make government leaner, but in a sense will make it stronger. After all, fat government is weak, weak in handling the problems."

"It is our responsibility," he said, "to find a way to reform our government institutions so that this new spirit of independence, self-reliance, pride that I sense in the American people can be nurtured."

The Star-News account quoted these highlights from Nixon's remarks:

The election—

It was settled the day Democratic Sen. George McGovern was nominated for president. McGovern's views "probably did not represent even a majority of Democrats. They certainly represented a minority of the country."

Foreign policy—

The second round of U.S.-Soviet Strategic Arms Limitation Talks—SALT—starting Nov. 22 will be more important than SALT I, which produced agreements to limit defense nuclear weapons and some offensive ones.

The Middle East "will have a very high priority." U.S. policy toward Cuba will not change unless Castro changes his attitude.

Domestic policy—

He will "shuck off" and "trim down" social programs set up in the 1960s that he considers massive failures largely because they just "threw money at the problems."

Taxes—

"There will be no solutions of problems that require a tax increase ...

"I am convinced that the total tax burden of the American people, federal, state and local, has reached the breaking point. It can go no higher."

Presidential aides—

Some healthy "friction, competition" between presidential adviser Henry A. Kissinger and the State Department, and adviser John Ehrlichman and the domestic agencies is going to continue. "That is the way it is going to have to be with them or their successors."

Political campaigns—

They are too long and they "bore people to death." Shorter campaigns would be better for presidential candidates "because we don't want to wear our people down to a frazzle before they take on the awesome responsibilities of this position."

Nixon added, however, that he is very pessimistic about whether campaigns actually can be shortened as a practical matter, because they are so competitive.

Horner wrote that Nixon was perhaps most emphatic in asserting "I honestly believe that government in Washington is too big and it is too expensive."

"With a puritan fervor he has seldom shown in public," Horner also said, "Nixon seemed to be closing the door on a time in which he felt the nation had been pampered and indulged, leaving its character weakened."

He quoted Nixon as saying:

"The average American is just like the child in the family. You give him some responsibility and he is going to amount to something. He is going to do something.

"If, on the other hand, you make him completely dependent and pamper him and cater to him too much, you are going to make him soft, spoiled and eventually a very weak individual."

Nobel Winner Says Sucrose Most Dangerous

COLUMBIA, Mo. (AP) — Two-time Nobel Prize winner Dr. Linus Pauling said Wednesday "sucrose may be the most dangerous substance" consumed by people.

The noted chemist said foodstuffs high in the sugar should perhaps be prohibited.

Speaking at the dedication of the new chemistry building at the University of Missouri-Columbia, Dr. Pauling reiterated his claim that vitamin C is instrumental in the control of the common cold.

He also relayed research which may prove a relationship between the intake of vietamin C and the control of major diseases, including cancer, and possibly mental disorders.

Kidney Fund Sought For Scott Man

SCOTT CITY — Funds are being sought to help pay the cost of kidney treatments for a 29-year-old Scott City man.

Theon Schafer Jr. of 810 Chester, Scott City, has lost all function in his kidneys and is undergoing kidney treatments at Baptist Memorial Hospital in Memphis.

He is awaiting a suitable donor for a kidney transplant.

He has had 12 kidney machine treatments at an average of $200 per treatment.

His mother, Mrs. Theon Schaefer Sr., said her son hopes to be able to obtain a home machine for use until the operation. He has moved into his parents' home because he cannot take care of himself.

Donations may be made to the Schaefer Trust Fun in care of Bank of Illmo.

Woman Drowns

CAPE GIRARDEAU — The body of Margaret Smith, 42, of 304 Morgan St. in Jackson was found Wednesday in Lake Boutin in Trail of Tears State Park by the sheriff's department after receiving a call that an abandoned car had been found near the lake.

A note saying, "I love you but I can't live any longer," was found inside the car.

According to the sheriff's department, an autopsy will be performed.

Firemen Called

Firemen were called at 12:50 p.m. Wednesday to Malone & Hyde Inc., 1500 West Malone Ave., when an air compressor caught fire while gasoline was being poured into it.

Firemen said Albert Freeman, an employe of Central Contractors, spilled gas on the compressor and it caught fire. Freeman received singed eyebrows and the compressor was damaged.

How a minus on your paycheck can be a plus in your future.

Sound confusing? It isn't, really. When you join the Payroll Savings Plan where you work, an amount you designate will be set aside automatically from each paycheck. That's the "minus."

That amount will then be invested in U.S. Savings Bonds. That's where the "plus" comes in. Because you're automatically saving for your future, with one of the safest investments there are: U.S. Savings Bonds.

And, by deducting a little at a time from each paycheck, you don't feel the pinch financially. Before you know it, you'll have quite a tidy sum tucked away.

And now there's a bonus interest rate on all U.S. Savings Bonds—for E Bonds, 5½% when held to maturity of 5 years, 10 months (4% the first year). That extra ½%, payable as a bonus at maturity, applies to all Bonds issued since June 1, 1970 . . . with a comparable improvement for all older Bonds.

Put a little "plus" in your future. Join the Payroll Savings Plan.

Bonds are safe. If lost, stolen, or destroyed, we replace them. When needed, they can be cashed at your bank. Tax may be deferred until redemption. And always remember, Bonds are a proud way to save.

Take stock in America.

Now Bonds pay a bonus at maturity.

Downing Gets Two More Years In House

BRAGG CITY — State Rep. Vic Downing, Bragg City ginner, was returned to another two- year term in the Missouri House of Representatives Tuesday, defeating his GOP opponent by a margin of more than two to one.

Rep. Downing, running in the newly- formed 162nd House district, received 4,797 votes to 2,210 votes for Felix Mangrum of Wardell, who operates an insurance agency in Hayti.

The new district includes all of Pemiscot County and Anderson Township in New Madrid County. Downing received 4,311 votes, including absentees, in Pemiscot County and 486 votes in Anderson Township. Mangrum received 2,028 votes in Pemiscot County and 182 votes in the single New Madrid County township.

The totals for Anderson Township do not include absentee ballots cast in New Madrid County.

Rep. Downing's former House district included portions of Pemiscot and Dunklin counties, but redistricting shifted the district's boundaries.

That honking you hear isn't the geese: It's tourists bound south for the winter.

HAROLD ANCELL, Buckner - Ragsdale Co. salesman, has his waist measured for contributions to the Mental Retardation Association by Jolene Walker, chairman of the fund drive. Mrs. Walker said $250 has been contributed thus far.

Q—What is the term of office of a member of the U.S. House of Representatives?

A—Two years.

Proffer Wins Close Race

CAPE GIRARDEAU — State Rep. Marvin E. Proffer of Jackson won another term in the Missouri House after undergoing a tough challenge from Melvin Lichtenegger of Jackson Route One.

Rep. Proffer, running in the 155th district, received 6,919 votes, while Lichtenegger polled 5,956.

Totals in the 155th District race show Proffer received 4,764 votes in Cape County; 876 in Scott and 1,279 in Bollinger. Lichtenegger got 4,544 in Cape; 273 in Scott and 1,139 in Bollinger.

Demos Win In PemCo

Democrats for two county posts in Pemiscot County won easy re- election yesterday with Earl Gill re- elected county court judge of the first district and Mrs. Obye Coker winning re- election as county assessor.

Gill polled 2,001 votes to his Republican opponent Bob Richardson's 818 ballots, while Mrs. Coker tallied 4,725 votes to her GOP opponent, Ollie Walton's 1,431.

The two races were the only contested ones on the county level.

Q—What is the meaning of the name Isaac?

A—"One laughs." It was given to a Hebrew patriach because of amusement at predictions of his birth to such old parents.

Top Democrats Plan To Broaden Party

WASHINGTON (AP) — Sen. Edward M. Kennedy and Gov. George C. Wallace say they plan to work for a broadened Democratic party in the years ahead after George McGovern's smashing presidential defeat at the hands of President Nixon.

And Texan John Connally, who led the Democrats supporting Nixon in the 1972 campaign, says he hopes the lessons of McGovern's electoral disaster Tuesday will produce a "responsible leadership that will bring the party back into the mainstream of American political thought."

None of the three — Kennedy, Wallace and Connally — would say much about his own political future but it took less than 24 hours after Nixon's landslide victory for the first voice for 1976 to be raised on the Republican side.

Sen. Edward W. Brooke of Massachusetts, the Senate's only black member and a landslide victor himself Tuesday, said he is going to give "serious thought" to a 1976 presidential bid, declaring that Vice President Spiro T. Agnew "is not the heir apparent" to GOP leadership.

Most of the political talk Wednesday looked toward the future as politicians of both parties assessed the voters' split decision that gave Nixon 49 of the 50 states and the largest popular vote total in history while confirming Democratic congressional control.

Final returns, still to be confirmed when official canvasses are made, showed Democrats with a net gain of two senators for a 57-43 Senate majority in the incoming 93rd Congress and a net loss of 11 members for a still- substantial 244-190 lead in the new House. There is one House member designated an independent.

Democrats made a net gain of one governorship among the 18 contested Tuesday, leaving them with 31 of 50 including four of the seven largest states — Illinois, Texas, Pennsylvania and Ohio.

In the presidential race, with 98 per cent of the nation's precincts counted, the popular vote stood:

Nixon 45,861,690, or 61 per cent.

McGovern 28,402,465, or 38 per cent.

Although the turnout for the election almost certainly set a record, incomplete figures indicated it fell far below the predicted 80 million to 85 million. About 77.5 million voted, compared with 73 million four years ago before the voting age was lowered to 18 nationwide.

But the percentage turnout was expected to be about 56 per cent, the first time since 1948 that it has been below 60 per cent of the voting- age population.

Kennedy, who emerged from Tuesday's election as the nation's leading Democrat and top 1976 prospect, was asked in an interview by the American Broadcasting Co. if he would be more available for the nomination four years from now than in 1972 when he refused to run.

"I'm not going to answer iffy questions," he said, adding that he has important work to do in the Senate.

The 40-year-old brother of the late President John F. Kennedy and Sen. Robert F. Kennedy noted that reform efforts led to greater participation in the Democratic party this year by the young, women and minorities.

"I'm going to continue that expansion to include more of the blue-collar workers, more of the elderly people" while letting the future take care of itself, Kennedy added.

Wallace, the victim of an attempted assassination last May as he campaigned for the Democratic nomination, said in Montgomery, Ala., that "I expect to have a part on the national level in restructuring the national Democratic party so that it will once again speak for the people whose views were rejected" at the Democratic convention in Miami Beach.

The Alabama governor, his legs paralyzed from the assassination attempt, declined to discuss his own plans except to say, "I do expect to remain active in politics."

Connally, likewise, was noncommittal except to say that he will remain a Democrat "as long as I can" but won't be able to if "the McGovern forces continue to be as arrogant as they have been."

Another Texan, Sen. Lloyd Bentsen, admonished the party to welcome back Democratic defectors and became the first prominent Democrat to call publicly for the ouster of party Chairman Jean Westwood.

"The leadership of the Democratic National Committee has suffered a crippling blow," Bentsen said. "As a party we must recognize this fact and begin to meet the problem realistically by selecting someone as chairman ... who can speak more effectively for all segments of our party."

Other party leaders have privately urged that Mrs. Westwood be replaced and the showdown could come Dec. 9 at the national committee's first post-election meeting.

Mrs. Westwood, elevated to the chairmanship last July at McGovern's behest, says she'll fight to keep the job.

With President Nixon off to his Key Biscayne, Fla., home to study plans for what aids said would likely be a shakeup of both the White House staff and the Cabinet in his second term, Brooke told a Boston news conference that he is considering a bid to become Nixon's successor four years hence.

"I'm going to give it serious thought," he said. "I'm going to wait and see."

While others were looking four years ahead, McGovern and his wife, Eleanor, planned to tune out politics during a vacation on St. Thomas in the Virgin Islands.

"He wants to be a private man for the next week or two," said press secretary Richard Dougherty. The McGoverns planned to fly to the island retreat today.

A charge of driving while intoxicated brought $100 fine and a 30- day suspended sentence to George W. Bailey of East Prairie. Bailey was also fined $10 and costs on a charge of having no operator's license. He was place on one - year probation on the driving while intoxicated charge.

A charge of careless and imprudent driving by improper passings brought a $31 fine to Robert Forrest Chandler of Charleston.

Charges of malicious destruction of personal property and disturbing the peace were dismissed against J. W. Carter, and costs in both cases were certified in Mississippi County. Also dismissed was a charge of having expired truck license against Charles William Perry of Charleston.

Judge Brown ordered warrants issued for George Simpkins of East Prairie and Vivian June Reynolds of Bertrand who failed to appear on improper registration charges.

An account suit for $890.44 brought against Willis Rogers of East Prairie was dismissed by Monsanto Company with prejudice.

Mr. C. L. Blanton,
Publisher
Daily Sikeston Standard
Sikeston, Missouri 63801

I had my first schooling in Sikeston for a short term. At that time the school building was located across the street from the Dr. Malone home. Across the street in front of his home was a railroad. He had three sons, Earl, Lyle and Johnie and a daughter a little older than Johnie. I do not recall her name. At that time the school had two playgrounds separated by a wire fence. Oneside was used by the boys and the other side by the girls.

C.T. Flota

In a short time I learned to read and write. My teachers were wonderful. Thereafter I continued my education by reading newspapers which the neighbors saved for me. My mother was my teacher.

My father died in 1899. I had a brother, two years my senior, and a younger brother and sister. My older brother and I opened a small wood yard at the rear of our residence to supply wood and kindling to neighbors. That was the only income our mother had at that time. Wood was probably the only fuel used in the residences. Sikeston was not then a large city. I received a pair of used shoes from Ernest Swan which he had outgrown. They were large for me but wonderful. I made no more barefoot tracks in the light snow.

The Swans lived across the street from our residence. Ernest was their only son. The Guerno family lived next door. Marshall and Albert were the boys. They had an older sister but I do not recall her name.

Some 72 years ago I went to the forest near Sikeston with Ernest Swan where his father was operating a dredge. Cypress trees and knees of various heights were thrown out on the right side and mud on the left.

While a staff officer during World War II in the Army Air Forces Technical Training Command I was asked to take a course in pilot training and completed same in 13 hours. Thereafter, I received a request through channels for suggestions on how to win the war. After careful consideration I recommended that Europe be invaded through Italy from the south which had not been done since Hannibal, and that was done.

As I view the past I am truly grateful that I learned to work and earn at an early age.

I would appreciate any information about the Malones, Guernos and Ernest Swan.

Dear Editor:

The "Spenders" in Congress are all gleefully shouting about "loopholes" and tax reform just so they can get more money to spend on their many hairbrained schemes.

Well, let's see if they can knock out tax- free Municipal Bonds for school facilities — charitable donations to your church — interest on your mortgage — or the deductions for your taxes — or the benefits for the blind, aged and disabled, or the income sick people spend on medical bills. The sum total of the above is about $11 Billion. The existing deficit is about $38 Billion. So, who is going to pay the remaining $27 Billion due according to Congressman Mark Andrews of North Dakota?

Let's hope these wild "Spenders" in the Congress will close the biggest "loophole" in the U. S. -- the congressional power to create overspending by "deficit" financing, which according to Congressman Wilbur Mills is the "... sole basic cause of inflation."

Sincerely

Dear Editor:

Since becoming a member of the Church of Scientology statewide Committee on Public Health and Safety I have become appalled by the lack of protection provided the people of Missouri and the nation by the Federal Food and Drug Administration. One would think that the F.D.A. gets a rakeoff on the money made from the plethora of drug use. Some cheered the drugging of "over-active" school children. too bad these children had their growth stunted to 60% of normal (New England Journal of Medicine). Forty years ago hundreds of black men in the South were recruited for a study of syphilis. The F.D.A. played ostrich while hundreds of these men were denied treatment, a fact soon to be investigated by a group of black physicians from the National Medical Association.

The bills in Congress calling for the abolishment of the F.D.A. and formation of an independent agency for consumers deserve the support of all Missourians. We need an agency which will protect common people and children, not just powerful lobby groups.

I had my first schooling in Sikeston for a short term. At that time the school building was located across the street from the Dr. Malone home. Across the street in front of his home was a railroad. He had three sons, Earl, Lyle and Johnie and a daughter a little older than Johnie. I do not recall her name. At that time the school had two playgrounds separated by a wire fence. Oneside was used by the boys and the other side by the girls.

In a short time I learned to read and write. My teachers were wonderful. Thereafter I continued my education by reading newspapers which the neighbors saved for me. My mother was my teacher.

My father died in 1899. I had a brother, two years my senior, and a younger brother and sister. My older brother and I opened a small wood yard at the rear of our residence to supply wood and kindling to neighbors. That was the only income our mother had at that time. Wood was probably the only fuel used in the residences. Sikeston was not then a large city. I received a pair of used shoes from Ernest Swan which he had outgrown. They were large for me but wonderful. I made no more barefoot tracks in the light snow.

The Swans lived across the street from our residence. Ernest was their only son. The Guerno family lived next door. Marshall and Albert were the boys. They had an older sister but I do not recall her name.

Some 72 years ago I went to the forest near Sikeston with Ernest Swan where his father was operating a dredge. Cypress trees and knees of various heights were thrown out on the right side and mud on the left.

While a staff officer during World War II in the Army Air Forces Technical Training Command I was asked to take a course in pilot training and completed same in 13 hours. Thereafter, I received a request through channels for suggestions on how to win the war. After careful consideration I recommended that Europe be invaded through Italy from the south which had not been done since Hannibal, and that was done.

As I view the past I am truly grateful that I learned to work and earn at an early age.

Indians Desert Building

WASHINGTON (AP) — Protesting Indians who seized the Bureau of Indian Affairs Building a week ago have returned it to the government—somewhat the worse for wear—and they claimed a victory.

The last two dozen Indians, out of as many as 500 who had occupied the white marble building since Thursday, filed out Wednesday night.

The Indians took with them Indian artifacts that had been on exhibit and BIA documents that they claimed contained evidence that public officials have deprived Indians of their property for many years.

"We know we definitely have changed the course of history," said Russell Means, a leader of the "Trail of Broken Treaties" caravan, which arrived in Washington last week to protest treatment of Indians by the government.

Dozens of Indian tribes from states like Oklahoma, Montana, South Dakota and New Mexico were represented in the caravan. Most Indians wore red headbands, armbands or scarves as symbols of "red power."

While in the BIA building, many fashioned makeshift tomahawks and clubs from legs of chairs and tables and vowed they would forcibly resist any attempt by police to evict them unless they first had action on their demands.

"We have destroyed the BIA," said Dennis Banks, national field director of the American Indian Movement.

Indian leaders said a major accomplishment of the sevenday occupation was the prospect the BIA would be dismantled. They said the documents that were seized would be used to assure Indians will control any new Indian agency.

Newsmen were permitted in the building Wednesday night.

Senate Leaders Face Shake up

WASHINGTON (AP) — Senate Republicans, their ranks weakened by losses they had least expected, are sputtering toward a leadership shakeup.

Two key spots in the GOP Senate lineup must be filled and there is a possibility that Hugh P. Scott might be challenged again for the top job in the minority leadership.

Leadership changes seemed less likely on the majority side as Democrats celebrated a margin widened from 10 to 14 by Tuesday's election.

Republicans were shocked at the Democratic gains. They had been confident of picking up some seats and had even glimpsed a chance of moving into Senate control.

Jubilant Democrats, on the other hand, said their victory not only assures them an excellent working majority in the 93rd Congress but also means they probably will retain control in the 1974 and even the 1976 elections.

The new 57-43 Democratic margin means the party has succeeded in reversing its downward slide from the 68-32 lead six years ago to a 55-45 edge in the 92nd Congress which adjourned last month.

The upsets which shocked the Republicans and surprised most Democrats came in Colorado and Iowa.

Veteran Sen. Gordon Allott had been considered a shoo-in in Colorado but he lost by about 15,000 votes to Floyd K. Haskell, a former state representative who had been a Republican until two years ago.

The debacle suffered in Iowa by Sen. Jack Miller, a two-term incumbent, was even more striking. He went down by 125,000 votes to Dick Clark, a relative unknown who walked 1,313 miles across the state in a folksy campaign.

Republicans also had expected Sen. Margaret Chase Smith to win a fifth term in Maine although they knew she faced a stiff challenge from Rep. Willaim D. Hathaway, victor by 27,000 votes.

In the leadership realignment, Republicans must choose replacements for Mrs. Smith as chairman of the conference of all GOP senators and for Allott as chairman of the key Policy Committee.

Whether there will be another challenge to Scott as Republican leader is not certain. The Pennsylvanian has sometimes angered conservatives by taking positions more liberal than the Nixon administration.

Sen. Howard H. Baker Jr., a top-heavy re-election victor in Tennessee, could decide to try for the leadership again. He lost to Scott 24 to 20 in the GOP conference two years ago.

But Republican liberals fared well, too. Two of the biggest victors were Charles H. Percy, who won by 1.1 million votes in Illinois, and Clifford P. Case, a winner by more than 700,000 votes in New Jersey.

Break-In Trial Set For Nov. 14

BENTON — Trial was set for Nov. 14 for Leslie Achter of Charleston Wednesday in Magistrate Court on charges of breaking into the home of Henry F. Claycomb of Charleston and stealing a color television set, electric can opener and two clocks.

Winford L. Beaird of Sikeston, charged with having in his possession two crow bars designed and commonly used for breaking into a safe, warehouse, store, shop, office or house, was bound over to appear in Circuit Court on Nov. 24.

A preliminary hearing was set for Nov. 15 and bond was fixed at $500 for Terry Allen McCormick of Sikeston on a charge of forgery.

Trial by jury was set for Nov. 22 for J. C. Caldwell of Scott City, who is charged with careless and imprudent driving.

Gary Eugene Prindle of Oran, charged with careless and imprudent driving, was fined $50 with $35 stayed on condition of good behavior for a period of six months.

John Partin of Vanduser was fined $38 plus costs after he pleaded guilty to charges of speeding.

Bonnie Mary Holt of Chaffee was fined $14 plus costs after she pleaded guilty to charges of speeding.

Scott Re-Elected Dunklin Sheriff

Raymond Scott won re-election to his fifth term as Dinklin County Sheriff Tuesday, winning the seat by an 896-vote margin over his opponent, Police Capt. Bill Cox.

The final tally showed Scott with 4,771 votes to Cox's 3,875, a narrower vote spread than the August primary, when Scott defeated his Democratic opponent, Gerald Horner, by 1,100 votes.

Sheriff Scott carried 17 of the county's 20 percincts, including the absentee count. He failed to muster the winning margin in Kennett's Ward Five and Malden Precincts Four and Five.

The race for the coveted $15,000- plus a year post came to a rousing campaign climax during the past week, creating one of the hottest of all political races in the county.

Scott based his campaign in the final weeks on his raids at the Holcomb All-Star Drive-In, and his desire to run for one more term.

BRUCE BIOSSAT

Hard Campaigner Kennedy . . . '76?

By BRUCE BIOSSAT

(Last of two articles.)

CAMPAIGNING WITH KENNEDY (NEA) It was icy weather when Ted Kennedy reached the tiny Sanford, Me., airport to fly to Vermont. Some 1,500 people and a bare-legged girls' band were there.

Surprised at the turnout from a town of 10,000, the senator said he supposed many had missed their suppers. He talked briefly, thanked them for coming out, then stepped down to shake some hands.

Aboard his small plane, he said he was sorry he could greet so few. He waved at them through the window. Then he shook his head and said to an aide: "We're too tight (on the schedule). We should have seen more of those good people."

Forty minutes later, he landed at Burlington, Vt., to find that another sizable airport crowd had been waiting two hours in 30-degree cold to greet him. Again, he rewarded them with a short talk.

Wherever he went in a two-day swing aimed at helping Democratic candidates, Kennedy was the focus. Big "Welcome Ted" signs abounded. Often his name was linked with the congressional or other contenders he was boosting. He got huge hands.

He was in friendly New England, home territory, yes, but he made out as well on a recent western trip.

In Pawtucket, R.I., his ovation was so big it was embarrassing. Ted quickly started a "We Want Pell" chant for the incumbent senator he had come to plug.

What's this all about? Is Kennedy preparing for 1976 in expectation of Sen. George McGovern's defeat?

His record suggests he'd be doing this stuff no matter what. He's always in huge demand, has almost always responded to calls for aid, and likes to help. Weeks ago, he promised to give nearly all of the last two campaign weeks to McGovern's uphill campaign.

But 1976 is never far from his thoughts. Add a McGovern defeat to the earlier chaos of the Democrats' nomination struggle, and you have a field strewn with scarred and broken bodies. Kennedy, a dominant figure, may loom then almost alone on the 1976 horizon.

You can easily make much of this if you wish. Kennedy not only works the game for all its fun, but goes at it with tireless professionalism. His staff is highly efficient. He mentions the name of a helpful young man in Maine and it is promptly noted for future use.

He constantly adds new political helpers, but the old ones, some going back to John Kennedy's time, hang in loyally. The Kennedy aura remains bright. Ted keeps it so himself, but candidates, friends and voters would sustain it even if he did not.

Mayor John Buckley of Lawrence, Mass., says "It's a joyful day when a Kennedy comes to visit us." A Boston woman touches him and says: "Good luck to you—and your family." Some observers think it's all a bit much, but it is probably inevitable.

Kennedy's fun-making has its serious core. It's no accident that some of his handclasps are audible. He's working.

It's not altogether trivial when he tells a Framingham, Mass., crowd: "We've had a nice stop-over at Paul's bakery. We picked up two eclairs and some glazed doughnuts." He's in league with people, easily and naturally.

But it can't be forgotten that he's also now a 10-year veteran of the Senate, still hard-plugging, well-schooled on many issues, a quick study on others, able to spout facts and figures convincingly—usually without the tinge of party propaganda. And he gets charged up.

The Ted Kennedy of today still carries handicaps and burdens—the lingering if fading memory of Chappaquiddick, the threats to his life, the Kennedy unpopularity in the South. These things will all get heavy attention if he becomes the big one after Nov. 7.

New Terms From Thieu

SAIGON (AP) — A newspaper financed by President Nguyen Van Thieu's private secretary reported today that Thieu is now willing to accept only a partial withdrawal of North Vietnamese troops into designated areas.

Other authoritative sources reported that Thieu is prepared to stand fast on his previous public demands, including total withdrawal of Hanoi's forces from the South, when Henry A. Kissinger's assistant, Gen. Alexander M. Haig, arrives Friday to urge his acceptance of the draft peace agreement.

Thieu's other demands include a cease-fire for Cambodia and Laos as well as Vietnam, and clarification of the draft agreement's language to insure that the proposed interim council to arrange elections would not be a coalition government in disguise.

The report that Thieu is now willing to accept a partial withdrawal was published in Tin Song, which U.S. officials believe is controlled by the presidential palace and reflects Thieu's official position.

Two Butler Incumbents Unseated By Republicans

In extremely close county races yesterday in Butler County, two Democratic county officials were unseated by their Republican opponents.

Sheriff Clyde Hendrix edged out a win over GOP William Stout Jr. with a vote of 6,585 to 6,194, winnint by 391 votes.

The only other Democrat to win a county race was George Golden, who took the assessor's race with a narrow 44-vote victory, tallying 6,194 votes to Republican candidate Claud Johson's 6,150.

County Reublicans winning offices were Virgle Brake, who tallied 1,181 to his Democratic opponent Ralph Shelton Jr.'s 890 votes on the Western District county court judge's race, and Clyde Richardson, the Republican who tallied 6,664 votes ove over Bill Trout's 5,862 votes in the public administrator's race.

Scott Re-Elected Dunklin Sheriff

Raymond Scott won re-election to his fifth term as Dinklin County Sheriff Tuesday, winning the seat by an 896-vote margin over his opponent, Police Capt. Bill Cox.

The final tally showed Scott with 4,771 votes to Cox's 3,875, a narrower vote spread than the August primary, when Scott defeated his Democratic opponent, Gerald Horner, by 1,100 votes.

Sheriff Scott carried 17 of the county's 20 percincts, including the absentee count. He failed to muster the winning margin in Kennett's Ward Five and Malden Precincts Four and Five.

The race for the coveted $15,000- plus a year post came to a rousing campaign climax during the past week, creating one of the hottest of all political races in the county.

Scott based his campaign in the final weeks on his raids at the Holcomb All-Star Drive-In, and his desire to run for one more term.

BRUCE BIOSSAT

Hard Campaigner Kennedy . . . '76?

By BRUCE BIOSSAT

(Last of two articles.)

CAMPAIGNING WITH KENNEDY (NEA) It was icy weather when Ted Kennedy reached the tiny Sanford, Me., airport to fly to Vermont. Some 1,500 people and a bare-legged girls' band were there.

Surprised at the turnout from a town of 10,000, the senator said he supposed many had missed their suppers. He talked briefly, thanked them for coming out, then stepped down to shake some hands.

Aboard his small plane, he said he was sorry he could greet so few. He waved at them through the window. Then he shook his head and said to an aide: "We're too tight (on the schedule). We should have seen more of those good people."

Forty minutes later, he landed at Burlington, Vt., to find that another sizable airport crowd had been waiting two hours in 30-degree cold to greet him. Again, he rewarded them with a short talk.

Wherever he went in a two-day swing aimed at helping Democratic candidates, Kennedy was the focus. Big "Welcome Ted" signs abounded. Often his name was linked with the congressional or other contenders he was boosting. He got huge hands.

He was in friendly New England, home territory, yes, but he made out as well on a recent western trip.

In Pawtucket, R.I., his ovation was so big it was embarrassing. Ted quickly started a "We Want Pell" chant for the incumbent senator he had come to plug.

What's this all about? Is Kennedy preparing for 1976 in expectation of Sen. George McGovern's defeat?

His record suggests he'd be doing this stuff no matter what. He's always in huge demand, has almost always responded to calls for aid, and likes to help. Weeks ago, he promised to give nearly all of the last two campaign weeks to McGovern's uphill campaign.

But 1976 is never far from his thoughts. Add a McGovern defeat to the earlier chaos of the Democrats' nomination struggle, and you have a field strewn with scarred and broken bodies. Kennedy, a dominant figure, may loom then almost alone on the 1976 horizon.

You can easily make much of this if you wish. Kennedy not only works the game for all its fun, but goes at it with tireless professionalism. His staff is highly efficient. He mentions the name of a helpful young man in Maine and it is promptly noted for future use.

He constantly adds new political helpers, but the old ones, some going back to John Kennedy's time, hang in loyally. The Kennedy aura remains bright. Ted keeps it so himself, but candidates, friends and voters would sustain it even if he did not.

Mayor John Buckley of Lawrence, Mass., says "It's a joyful day when a Kennedy comes to visit us." A Boston woman touches him and says: "Good luck to you—and your family." Some observers think it's all a bit much, but it is probably inevitable.

Kennedy's fun-making has its serious core. It's no accident that some of his handclasps are audible. He's working.

It's not altogether trivial when he tells a Framingham, Mass., crowd: "We've had a nice stop-over at Paul's bakery. We picked up two eclairs and some glazed doughnuts." He's in league with people, easily and naturally.

But it can't be forgotten that he's also now a 10-year veteran of the Senate, still hard-plugging, well-schooled on many issues, a quick study on others, able to spout facts and figures convincingly—usually without the tinge of party propaganda. And he gets charged up.

The Ted Kennedy of today still carries handicaps and burdens—the lingering if fading memory of Chappaquiddick, the threats to his life, the Kennedy unpopularity in the South. These things will all get heavy attention if he becomes the big one after Nov. 7.

New Terms From Thieu

SAIGON (AP) — A newspaper financed by President Nguyen Van Thieu's private secretary reported today that Thieu is now willing to accept only a partial withdrawal of North Vietnamese troops into designated areas.

Other authoritative sources reported that Thieu is prepared to stand fast on his previous public demands, including total withdrawal of Hanoi's forces from the South, when Henry A. Kissinger's assistant, Gen. Alexander M. Haig, arrives Friday to urge his acceptance of the draft peace agreement.

Thieu's other demands include a cease-fire for Cambodia and Laos as well as Vietnam, and clarification of the draft agreement's language to insure that the proposed interim council to arrange elections would not be a coalition government in disguise.

The report that Thieu is now willing to accept a partial withdrawal was published in Tin Song, which U.S. officials believe is controlled by the presidential palace and reflects Thieu's official position.

Two Butler Incumbents Unseated By Republicans

In extremely close county races yesterday in Butler County, two Democratic county officials were unseated by their Republican opponents.

Sheriff Clyde Hendrix edged out a win over GOP William Stout Jr. with a vote of 6,585 to 6,194, winnint by 391 votes.

The only other Democrat to win a county race was George Golden, who took the assessor's race with a narrow 44-vote victory, tallying 6,194 votes to Republican candidate Claud Johson's 6,150.

SCIENCE IN YOUR LIFE

Most of our everyday containers are degradable. If you want to litter, go right ahead and throw the containers on the ground. It is only a matter of time until they have decayed.

A common soft drink can dropped in the woods and not touched except by air, rain, snow, natural mulch, and sunlight will likely be completely degraded by this time in 2472. That is for the aluminum parts of the can. Actually, say researchers at Pennsylvania State University, the steel or tin portions will probably have turned to metallic dust in no more than 100 years.

The conventional plastic wrapper, says Penn State's Dr. R. F. Kammereck, will probably have gone back to nature by 2200 or thereabouts. And glass bottles -- they are degradable, too. Chemist Evelyn C. Marboe says a glass bottle (or broken glass) left on the forest floor will have lost its battle with the elements in approximately a million years.

Research which was designed to provide man with durable containers has made it easy for him to leave his mark upon the landscape.

What do you call a ground meat patty that is excellent for snacks; ideal for teenager's meals; goes well with pickles, ketchup, mustard, and a bun; and it comes from pigs?

A hamburger? No. Hamburger meat comes from cattle.

The answer is a porkburger. The porkburger is made from unseasoned, unspiced ground pork that is not at all like sausage. It is being developed in the UMC College of Agriculture by food scientist William C. Stringer.

People who have had a chance to taste Stringer's porkburgers say this new product has a very good chance of hogging the fast- service food market.

We like to believe that all people are created equal, but we sometimes have to admit that some are more equal then others.

Children born to poor families are socially handicapped from their birth says Dr. Ronald Davie, deputy director of England's National Children's Bureau. The disadvantage increases progressively as the children grow older, he said, following a survey of 17,000 British children.

All of the youngsters were born within the same week. By age seven, the working class children had dropped behind the middle class children in nearly all aspects of physical and educational development. They were shorter and more likely to have physical defects.

Their school work was poor and they were hostile toward teachers, even withdrawing and completely writing off adult standards, Dr. Davie reports. The gap in reading scores between the two groups averaged more than four years.

It's enough to make a grown woman shudder. Imagine, you just step through a hoop and a device tells all the world how much of your body is bone and lean and how much is fatty blubbler.

UMC Extension workers are taking this new Electronic Meat Measuring Equipment (EMME) out into the state to help livestock producers select their breeding stock. A hog is driven through the loop and the device instantly translates the changes caused in the magnetic field into readings of fat and lean.

"Meatier hogs give a higher reading on the instrument than fat hogs," says state Extension Livestock specialist Maurice Alexander. "The EMME works because lean tissue conducts electrical energy 20 times better than fat."

It will make an important contribution to the selection of lean meat breeding stock. It is particularly helpful because the small EMME unit is portable.

Previously, such readings of total fat and lean in a live animal could be made in Missouri only at the Agricultural Experiment Station's Low-Level Radiation Laboratory on the UMC campus. The Low-Level Lab uses a different principle for these determinations.

And ladies, you don't need to worry.

Blind Scientist Votes Without Help

STANFORD, Calif. (AP) — A young Stanford University scientist says he may be the first blind person to cast a regular ballot without human help in a voting booth.

His only aid was a sensing device called the "Optacon."

"The possibilities of the machine are limitless for the blind," Loren Schoof, 24, of Stanford's Applied Electronics Laboratory, said in an interview Wednesday.

With the book-sized Optacon, Schoof informed officials at his polling place near here Tuesday that he would cast his ballot like anybody else — alone and without help.

"The election officials reacted with a great deal of surprise and confusion," Schoof said. "they didn't quite understand how I could be able to read an ordinary balot without assistance."

Finally, Schoof entered the booth and, he said, cast a completely secret ballot, despite his blindness.

Schoof, blinded at age 10 by a disease, explained that the blind reader uses the Optacon's small probe to scan reading material. The probe contains a miniature camera which activates a silicon retina, an array of 144 tiny rods which vibrate in the form of the character sensed by the probe. The blind person "reads" the character with his forefinger.

Schoof believes the blind should be able to pursue careers in science and engineering with the aid of the Optacon. The device helped him get his master's degree in electronics operations research in half the time he would have needed without it, he added.

The Optacon project originated with Prof. John G. Linvill, chairman of of Stanford's Electrical Engineering Department, whose blind daughter is now a senior at Stanford.

Together with associates, they formed Telesensory Systems Inc., to produce the four- pound Optacon.

Jim Bliss, a former Stanford professor and now president of the corporation, said that since production of the Optacon began in September, 1971, the firm has done about $500,000 in business in the United States and Europe. The machines cost about $5,000 each.

PSC Sets Hearing For Research Surcharge

JEFFERSON CITY — The proposal of electric utilities in Missouri to establish a surcharge for support of research and development will be heard by the Missouri Public Service Commission at 10 a.m., Nov. 14 and 15.

The utilities applied for authority to use the surcharge as a means of obtaining funds for their share of the support of the Electric Power Research Institute.

In their applications, the utilities said the investor-owned electric utilities throughout the United States expect to increase the collective research and development funding from approximately $31.5 million in 1972 to about $137.6 million in 1974.

If government- owned and cooperative parts of the industry contribute on a like basis, their share in 1974 will be about $40 million, raising the total to $177 million.

The companies requested that the commission allow the surcharge to become effective on Jan. 1, 1973.

A massive electric power industry research and development program is a necessity, the companies said in their applications, to enable the electric utility industry to meet the energy demand in ways that are reliable, economic and environmentally acceptable.

The amount collected by each company if the surcharge were approved would be:

	1973	1974
Arkansas- Missouri Power Co.	$ 64,206.00	$ 100,188.00
Kansas City Poweer & Light Co.	333,329.61	513,108.69

Book Review

THE IRON DREAM
by Norman Spinrad

THE IRON DREAM is Norman Spinrad's newest science fiction novel, a giant leap of the imagination that has been compared to the works of J.R.R. Tolkien, C.S. Lewis, and Sir Oswald Mosley.*

THE IRON DREAM postulates that Adolf Hitler left Germany in 1919, emigrated to America, and became a science fiction writer. There, obsessed with his dream of the brutal Nazi regime, he writes a book -- LORD OF THE SWASTIKA -- that is a masterpiece of wishfulfillment. The horrors of World War II take place only in the twisted mind of Hitler, a lowly science fiction writer dying of paresis. Nazi Germany never happened. THE IRON DREAM is thus both a novel about science fiction novels and a novel about the mind of Hitler. It is, as the following comments attest, a triumph.

*"To compare this novel with the works of J.R.R. Tolkien, C.S. Lewis, G. K. Chesterson, and Sir Oswald Mosley is not, I feel, saying too much ... This exciting and tense fantasy adventure ... is the very quintessence of sword and sorcery. It is bound to earn Hitler the credit he so richly deserves!" -- Philip Jose Farmer

"Disturbingly fascinating ... the stunned reader can only gasp in wonder!" -- Harlan Ellison

"If Wagner wrote science fiction, this is the way he would do it!" -- Harry Harrison.

Norman Spinrad is the author of many science fiction novels, most notably THE MEN IN THE JUNGLE, BUG JACK BARRON and THE LAST HURRAH OF THE GOLDEN HORDE, all Avon titles. His work has appeared in such periodicals as Playboy, New Worlds, Galaxy, the Los Angeles Free Press, and the Magazine of Fantasy and Science Fiction. He is a member of the Writers Guild of America and Science Fiction Writers of America.

DR. LAWRENCE E. LAMB

Info Is Offered On Nitroglycerin

By Lawrence Lamb, M.D.

Dear Dr. Lamb — I am writing to ask for some clarification about nitroglycerin pills. You said in one of your columns that they are quite all right for the treatment of recurring angina but harmful for persons who had chest pains. What is the difference between angina which my doctor told me I have, and chest pains. How can one tell when he is having an attack of angina without the pain? I was told by my doctor that it would not harm me to take nitroglycerin in anticipation of pain unless I overdo it.

You also said that the reason nitroglycerins didn't harm some people is because they weren't fresh by the time they are taken. How long will they keep and what is the best container to keep them in? I carry mine in a plastic box in my pocket, which I refill from time to time from pills contained in a small glass bottle of 100 pills as they come from the drug store. I have this refilled every three or four months.

Dear Reader — Because the use of nitroglycerin tablets is widespread, it is important that people really understand their use, benefits and dangers. Angina pectoris is the constricting or squeezing discomfort or pain in the chest associated with heart disease. Angina lasts less than 10 minutes. Longer episodes may be a heart attack.

Individuals who have "established angina" with regular recurring chest discomfort of short duration and who receive relief from this discomfort by nitroglycerin are taking the right medicine. The individual who has not had any angina or chest pain for a period of several months and has not been taking nitroglycerin tablets, because he didn't need them, and then suddenly develops chest pains should call his doctor first.

The onset of chest discomfort that resembles angina in a person who hasn't had angina for a month or years, often means a heart attack and the treatment is different. These individuals are well advised not to take anything except under their doctor's recommendation, and he will usually want to see them right away. Nitroglycerin tablets taken at the onset of a heart attack (I'm not talking about angina) can sometimes lower the blood pressure and cause shock, thereby complicating the heart attack and may be very dangerous. You can take nitroglycerin tablets to prevent angina as your doctor has recommended.

Nitroglycerin tablets will not stay fresh unless they are kept in a special container. The small glass bottles with the 100 pills that you get from the drug store is carefully sealed to keep the pills fresh. In this state they will stay fresh for months or years. Once the seal is broken and the tablets are exposed to the air and normal environment, they will gradually deteriorate. The rate of deterioration varies but you should not keep pills longer than six months after the seal on the initial bottle is broken or in a plastic box or other ordinary container. Even this may be stretching it a little for some preparations. Most of them, if kept in their original bottle even though the seal is broken, should be good for a period of three to six months, however.

Science In Your Life

Calorie conscious dieters should go for a new snack food in spite of its odd name, partially - defatted peanuts. They are crunchy, crisp, and contain only about half as many calories as the usual roasted peanuts.

Following a formula developed in the USDA Southern Laboratory at Athens, Ga., about half of the oil is pressed out of the peanuts, then the nuts are reshaped with hot water and roasted. They are already on the market in some areas.

When you've cooked a smoked beef tongue to be eaten cold, you can let it stand in the cooking water for several hours. Then drain the tongue and refrigerate it.

HOLIDAY GUESTMANSHIP

Here's how to be a perfect house guest during the frantic holiday season: 1) Ask to help in the kitchen, but don't insist. "Guest clutter" around the cook can be very distracting. 2) Bring your favorite holiday cookies as a hostess gift. 3) Don't forget any personal products: aspirin, hair dryer and (most important if your system doesn't travel well) a laxative. Keep your guest room spotless. 5) If there are children in the house, bring a slew of inexpensive games to keep them occupied while their mother is busy.

Locked Church Doors Basis For Pet Peeve

By POLLY CRAMER

DEAR POLLY—My Pet Peeve is with the many locked churches throughout our nation. I have seen such beautiful churches in strange cities and have longed to go inside. I know the exterior beauty only mildly reflects the absolute beauty of the interior but most of the time I find them locked. Can you imagine the satisfaction of being known as a nation of churches, above all other things?—RUBY

Polly's Problem

DEAR POLLY—How can one get rid of roaches in a gas range? I have read the list of contents on the labels of the sprays and all are composed of combustible ingredients. I really need help.—MARY M.

DEAR POLLY—I have made several hats from plastic bleach bottles and hope my directions make it possible for Mrs. J. B. to make one successfully. For mine, I cut eight pieces for the crown and eight pieces for the brim. Those for the crown headband are rectangles with one side not too much longer than the other and with rounded corners. Those for the brim are shaped somewhat like a chair seat that is narrower at the back than the front where the corners are rounded. The narrow ends of the brim pieces fit the longer sides of the rectangles. Holes are made all around the pieces with a paper punch. Crochet around all these pieces with the desired color of yarn, two single crochet in the side holes and three single crochet in the corner holes. Hold pieces for crown band together with wrong sides out and single crochet together. Do same with pieces for brim. Put crown and brim together in same manner. To make top for the crown start in the center as for a doily and increasing as need be so piece will lie flat and work until large enough to fit around the headband. Do not make too large. I pin this crocheted circle to the plastic headband in several places before crocheting them together. Any desired pattern could be used for this top but I like it a bit open and just use a chain one or two and double crochet. One I made was from a pink bottle and the crochet wool was white which made a very pretty hat. —INA

Hearnes Declares Nov. 25 "Don Faurot Day" In State

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo. (AP) — Gov. Warren E. Hearnes today proclaimed Nov. 25 "Don Faurot Day" in Missouri and urged all citizens to join in tribute to the long time athletic director at the University of Missouri and inventor of the split-T formation.

Faurot, 70, will be honored that day by dedication of the M.U. football stadium as "Faurot Field."

As football coach from 193557, his teams won 101 games, lost 79, tied 10, won three conference titles and went to five post season bowl games.

He was the Tigers' fullback in 1922-23-24, captain of the basketball team and a baseball letterman. He is a native of Mountain Grove, amember of the Missouri Sports Hall of Fame, National Football Hall of Fame and a Missouri Squire.

Big Price Increases Forecast For Gasoline

WASHINGTON — Motorists might dispute it but gasoline, a business involving 3.7 cents of every consumer dollar, has been a relatively good buy. Since 1961, the cost of gasoline at the pump has gone up 21.1 per cent, only half as much as the over- all cost of living. Gasoline may not be a good buy much longer. From industry officials, trade journals and congressional committees have come dire warnings of higher prices and shortages in the months and years ahead.

Some authorities predict that gasoline prices may increase by 50 per cent or more in the next few years. The reasons for these bleak forecasts include increased consumption, growing dependence on foreigh petroleum and overburdened refining capacity at home. Refineries transform almost half of every barrel of crude oil into gasoline.

Federal regulations to control automobile pollution are another reason for expected gasoline price increases. The Environment Protection Agency (EPA) has proposed that all large- volume gasoline stations carry a virtually lead- free fuel by July 1, 1974. Because more crude oil is needed to yield a gallon of lead- free fuel, EPA estimates that unleaded fuel will cost 1.65 cents a gallon more than the leaded variety. Unleaded fuel also cuts mileage by 3 to 15 per cent, further increasing the cost to motorists.

Studies indicate that customers using unleaded gasoline would pay 5.5 to 7 cents a gallon more. In addition, new anti- pollution engines will burn considerably more gasoline than older models, sending gasoline costs still higher.

The structure of the oil industry also influences the price of gasoline. Of the 220,000 gasoline stations in the country today, about 70 per cent are "major marketers," distributors for "integrated" oil companies -- those like Shell or Mobil which are incolved in all steps from production to marketing. the rest, the independent marketers, are usually small, new or unintegrated retailers who buy gasoline from others, including the major- brand refineries.

Twenty- five years ago, the majors did more than 95 per cent of the country's gasoline business. By this year, the independents had captured almost one- third of the retail market with prices two to five cents a gallon less than at name- brand pumps.

But the independent dealers, who not so long ago profited from a gasoline surplus and were able to buy brand- name fuels at discout prices, are beginning to suffer from shortages. Major refineries are now barely able to supply their own branded stations. Independents are eithe unable to obtain fuel from them or are charged far higher prices for it. Authorities predict that if the gasoline shortage continues, many independents will be forced out of business.

Gasoline shortages may also bring an end to the fierce and widespread gasoline wars that have flared up during the last 15 years. These wars may be started by majors who lower prices to compete with independents or with other majors, or by independents sho seek to widen the price differential. Both groups, but especially the independents, are hurt by gasoline wars. Major dealers receive a subsidy fromm their oil companies. Independents generally suffer the entire price- cutting loss.

It is sometimes assumed that the only winner in a price war is the motorsit who often saves 10 cents or more on every gallon of gasoline. However, the consumer is pictured as the real victim by Ronald T. Peterson, president of the Sociaty of Independent Gasoline Marketers of America. He told a congressional Joint Economic Committee subcommittee early this year that independents will be squeezed out by price wars and "in the end ... the consumer will pay more for petroleum products than would have been paid if the competitive environment had been preserved."

There is little doubt that current oil shortages and environmental regulations will mean a substantial rise in gasoline prices.. The extent of these projected rises and their effect on consumers is a subject of growing concern to the auto and oil industries. If motorists are obliged to pay two dollars every time they drive six or seven miles, as some persons predict, driving could become the rich man's luxury it was in the early 1900s.

The American public, wedded to the private automobile, is unlikely to share the environmentalists' enthusiasm for mass transit or the physical- fitness crusaders' zeal for bicycles or walking. If gasoline becomes too scarce or too expensive, they are far more likely to demand other sources of power to fuel their cars. Among the alternatives to the gasoline - fueled internal combustion engine are the relatively pollution- free electric, steam and gas turbine engines. All are plagued by problems, not the least of which is lack of interest on the part of the auto industry.

Auto makers are understandably more interested in the development of alternative sources of fuel -- compressed or liquified natural gas, liquified petroleum gas or propane, and hydrogen -- than in the replacement of the internal combustion engine.

Matthews On Honor Roll At Keesler AFB

Airman Floyd A. Matthews, Jr., 3425 Student Squadron, has achieved an academic standing in his class at Headquarters, Keesler Technical Training Center (ATC), Keesler Air Force BAse, Miss., which placed his name on the honor roll in a course conducted by ground radio branch.

Matthews is the son of Mrs. Mable Matthews, 405 Virginia St. in Sikeston, Mo.

Better Bumpers Result In Lower Insurance Rates

Owners of 1973 automobiles sold in the U.S. will now receive 10%, 15%, or 20% discounts on collision insurance from the MFA Insurance Companies, according to an announcement by MFA Insurance Agents William R. Burke and Jack Heckert of Sikeston.

Bumpers on 1973 cars have been made stronger and safer and MFA Insurance offers the discounts in accordance with the quality of the bumper. "The stronger the bumper, the better the discount, "Agent Burke said.

Matthews On Honor Roll At Keesler AFB

Airman Floyd A. Matthews, Jr., 3425 Student Squadron, has achieved an academic standing in his class at Headquarters, Keesler Technical Training Center (ATC), Keesler Air Force BAse, Miss., which placed his name on the honor roll in a course conducted by ground radio branch.

Matthews is the son of Mrs. Mable Matthews, 405 Virginia St. in Sikeston, Mo.

Better Bumpers Result In Lower Insurance Rates

Owners of 1973 automobiles sold in the U.S. will now receive 10%, 15%, or 20% discounts on collision insurance from the MFA Insurance Companies, according to an announcement by MFA Insurance Agents Heckert of Sikeston.

Bumpers on 1973 cars have been made stronger and safer and MFA Insurance offers the discounts in accordance with the quality of the bumper. "The stronger the bumper, the better the discount, "Agent William R. Burke and Jack Burke said.

Think a thank-you-thought...
Send the FTD Thanksgiver™

There couldn't be a more perfect time to thank someone you love than at Thanksgiving.
And that's what the FTD Thanksgiver is all about. It says, "Thanks for being my mother or father." "Thanks for being my friend." "Thanks for being nice." "Thanks for memories we shared before you went away."
And it says it sincerely and beautifully with flowers. Lovely fall flowers elegantly arranged with golden wheat and slender cattails.
Sending a Thanksgiver almost anywhere is as easy as a call or visit to your FTD Florist (Most FTD Florists accept major credit cards).
Do it. And start a new tradition. It'll keep you close to friends and loved ones, no matter how far away. When you think about it, we all have a lot of thanking to do.

Monkeys Pick Coconuts For a Few Bananas a Day

By MORT ROSENBLUM
Associated Press Writer

KOTA BHARU, Malaysia (AP) — Coconut-picking machines on this palmy coast run cheaply. A few bananas a day keep them operating for five years or more.

Since coconuts grow high up long, skinny tree trunks — and it's a lot of work to climb them — local Malays for centuries have found it easier to con monkeys into the job.

The investment is a patient wait by the monkey trap, a few months of concentrated gorilla training and a daily light meal after the day's crop is in.

When the monkey finally figures out what's going on and rebels, he is handed his pink slip and sold to a neighbor who likes curried monkey.

More than a thousand monkeys — of a sort known as "berok" here — work for coconut growers in Kelantan and Trengganu states on Malaysia's east coast. Farther south, Pahang state growers use baboons.

It's not a profession which breeds good manners, and enthralled tourists are warned to stay well clear. Malay farmers have been hospitalized or worse from bites by their own monkeys.

Baboons are even nastier.

Beroks are trained to work at the end of a long thin cord attached round their necks. They are carefully trained to pluck a specific coconut and respond faithfully to commands transmitted by the cord with meaningful tugs.

A good monkey can harvest a thousand coconuts in a morning's work, earning for his master perhaps $2. He rests only on Friday — the Moslem day of prayer.

He usually lives among the stilts under a raised Malay kampong house. His master takes him to work perched on bicycle handle bars or led down the road like a dog on a walk. If the grove is upriver, the berok sits regally up front in a boat.

For some, berok training and exploiting is a detailed art. The better indoctrinated the monkey, the larger the gains.

For others, like young Mamat Bin Yusof, the suggestion that anything unusual is involved earns the suggester a sympathetic stare.

"What you do mean?" he asked a visitor. "I just climb up to that hill (indicating a nearby mountain), trap a monkey and when he grows up, he picks coconuts . . ."

As he spoke, he said a few words to his monkey with two sharp yanks on the cord. He calls his berok "Jambo" because, he says, "it's a good monkey name."

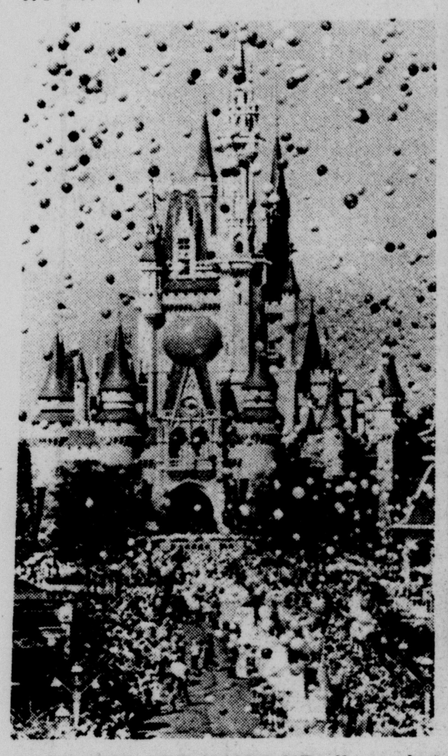
Others converse in grunts and snorts as their beroks listen in rapt attention.

Properly, a young berok learns to twist a coconut while sitting on the ground. Then he is taught to climb a short tree and pull off coconuts attached to it by the teacher.

He later learns to pick out mature coconuts and drop them to the ground. And he is taught to leap directly to the next tree without wasting time coming down first.

Several Kelantanese Malays run obedience schools for a small consideration.

COCONUT PICKER — For centuries Malays have been using monkeys to scale trees and pick coconuts for them. Here a monkey who has finished his day's picking chores refreshes himself with a scoop of water. The nuts he has picked are behind him in the canoe.



BALLOONS ARE GOING UP all over but for different reasons. In Florida, left, it's because the new Disney World has opened while in Britain, right, it is because exuber ant Conservative Party members are showing their sup port for their country's entry into the Common Market.

While Strolling on the Beach One Day . . .

The four-photo adventure of Eric Oetjen, 18 months, and his sister Kim, a bit older, of Fort Lauderdale, Fla. (Photos by Emil Fray)

Who needs a bikini? Some guys get the same effect naturally.

When you're built close to the beach, running into obstacles is easy.

What every fellow needs—a sympathetic sister with a strong arm.

And so it's off to the showers for the end of another glorious day.

LONG ON STYLE—Sturdy cotton corduroy shapes a buttoned and belted jacket with quilted suede shoulders and scalloped pockets. It's styled by Londonfog in Cone Mills' corduroy.

RUGGED—Carwood comes up with a new version of the Western jacket. In Cone Mills' blue cotton denim, it's shearling-lined and has flapped patch pockets on the yoked front.

Rule Decision Awards Game To Charleston One Day Late

50 years ago
November 9, 1922

Victor Drumm, referee of the Sikeston- Charleston football game at Sikeston Friday, today reversed a decision made in the contest, in which he gave Sikeston a touchdown in the final quarter, and awarded the contest to Charleston. He announced the score as, Charleston 6, Sikeston 2. Drumm today related the story of the incident: "Sikeston had pushed Charleston back against the latter's goal line and Charleston attempted to punt. The kick was blocked and the ball flew back over the heads of spectators near the lines, and back of an automobile standing approximately 25 yards from the goal line. A Sikeston player darting through the crowd, fell on the ball, and I ruled it a touchdown.

"But according to the approved ground rules which are a part of the football code and governs every contest unless specific changes are made, any ball going into a crowd of spectators behind the line, is a safety. Not being acquainted with the new ground rules I did not rule it this way, however, but on being shown the rule, today, I changed my decision and take authority to award the contest to Charleston."

Mrs. R. Q. Brown of Charleston came over Thursday to visit with firends and relatives in Sikeston and vicinity.

Dr. T. V. Miller died at his home in Sikeston Tuesday after a short illness. He was 42 years old at the time of his death.

Lansky In Miami Cardiac Center

MIAMI BEACH, Fla. AP — Meyer lansky, the reputed underworld financier, is undergoing treatment at Mt. Sinai Medical Center for a "cardiac insufficiency."

Lansky, 71, who was reported in satidfactory condition, was admitted to the hospital 11 hours after federal agents arrested him on his arrival early Tuesday at Miami International Airport.

He came to Miami from South America, where he had been searching for asylum. He had been in Israel, but authorities there said he would be expelled if he did not leave.

FBI agents arrested him as he stepped off the airplane on a long string of pending charges, including conspiracy to evade income taxes and refusing to appear before a federal grand jury. He was arraigned and released under $650,000 bond.

What's The Law?

The Case Of The Flying Snowballs

By Jack Strauss, LL.B.

Mr. Dinkle was driving along in his automobile when he was suddenly bombarded by a foray of snowballs. Hitting his breaks and skidding to a halt Mr. Dinkle vaulted out of his car and caught up with 10- year- old Dennis, the boy responsible for the barrage, just before Dennis had reached the sanctity of his house.

Grabbing the boy by the arm, the enraged motorist led Dennis back to his car and then drove him into town where he turned the boy over to the police with a complaint that Dennis had been throwing snowballs at passing cars.

The next day, Dennis took a second potshot at Mr. Dinkle, but this time in court. He sued Mr. Dinkle for false imprisonment.

"The guy was a big bully," Dennis testified in court. "He had no right to push me around or to take me anywhere against my will in his car."

"The kid's got to be kidding," laughed Mr. Dinkle. "If I hadn't turned him over to a policeman, his snowball throwing might have caused a serious accident. Under the circumstances, my action was both wise and reasonable."

IF YOU WERE THE JUDGE, would you permit the snowball throwing Dennis to collect for false imprisonment?

This is how the judge ruled: YES! The judge held that while a motorist may take reasonable steps to prevent a child from throwing snowballs at passing cars, putting him in a car when the child is only a few yards from his home and then driving him into town to turn him over to a policeman is unreasonable as a matter of law. From the time Dennis was put into the car, concluded the judge, his liberty was illegally restrained so as to constitute false imprisonment.

(Based upon a 1966 Wisconsin Supreme Court Decision)

The Prayer from the Upper Room

Cast all your anxieties on him, for he cares about you. (I Peter 5:7)

PRAYER: Our Father, we confess our many failures which have prevented us from reaching the heights. Forgive us, and help us through new vision to rededicate ourselves and with renewed strength move forward in meaningful discipleship. In the spirit of the Master we ask. Amen.

NBC Triumphs By Early Prediction

NEW YORK (AP) — The analyses are dwindling, the recounts are in progress, sanity appears restored and the television networks are knocking down those mammoth elecion night sets and thinking about 1974.

For NBC it was a night of triumph. It projected President Nixon the winner at 8:30 p.m. - the first to do so - and things went so smoothly it also was the first network to leave the air early Wednesday.

For ABC, it was the night of the slow groan. It was the last to project Nixon the winner; that word came at 9:21 p.m. here.

How did NBC do it? According to Irwin "Bud" Lewis, the network's election director, it could have been done far sooner had NBC been willing to go with an educated belief instead of computer statistics.

"We had a fairly good idea it was in the bag," he said. "At 7, we went with what we knew and we said it in the strongest terms we knew."

The terms came from NBC's John Chancellor. He said Nixon appeared headed for a "Landslide victory" if current voting trends continued.

"Then it was just a matter of adding faster than the other guy," Lewis said.

An ABC Spokesman said his network's delay in projecting Nixon the winner primarily was due to ABC's firm policy of not projecting any state in the presidential race until the polls closed in that state.

ABC's projection would have been swifter, he said, had it not been for four states - including New Jersey - that extended their poll-closing times for one reason or another.

CBS, which projected Nixon the winner at 8:52 p.m., acquitted itself admirably, despite the face 1,200 of its cameramen, technicians and engineers had been on strike against it since Friday.

Its over-all reporting seemed crisper and more concise than that of that of the two other networks; its regional approach to the election gave some form to the often mind-boggling flow of projections that followed the Nixon report.

Crafts Bazaar Set Nov. 18-19

CAPE GIRARDEAU — More than 30 craftsmen are participating in the 1972 Christmas Crafts Bazaar to be held in Cape Girardeau Nov. 18-19.

The bazaar, which is sponsored by the Christian Art Council, will present a wide variety of handcrafted items for sale to the public. Mrs. Robert E. Ramsey, a member of the committee planning the bazaar, reports that the craft items include ceramice, jewelry, beadcraft, toys and sculpture art. "Something for everyone, " she states, "and each an original handmade item."

Professionals and hobbiests alike have entered this year's pre-Christmas bazaar and participants have been drawn from Cape Girardeau and surrounding areas.

The craftwork will be on display at the former Teenage Club Building, 423 Broadview St. on Nov. 18 from 10 a.m. to 9 p.m. and on Nov. 19 from 1 p.m. to 6 p.m. Visitors to the Christmas Crafts Bazaar will be served punch and cookies during the afternoon hours on both days.

Lansky In Miami Cardiac Center

MIAMI BEACH, Fla. AP — Meyer lansky, the reputed underworld financier, is undergoing treatment at Mt. Sinai Medical Center for a "cardiac insufficiency."

Lansky, 71, who was reported in satidfactory condition, was admitted to the hospital 11 hours after federal agents arrested him on his arrival early Tuesday at Miami International Airport.

He came to Miami from South America, where he had been searching for asylum. He had been in Israel, but authorities there said he would be expelled if he did not leave.

FBI agents arrested him as he stepped off the airplane on a long string of pending charges, including conspiracy to evade income taxes and refusing to appear before a federal grand jury. He was arraigned and released under $650,000 bond.

The Prayer from the Upper Room

Cast all your anxieties on him, for he cares about you. (I Peter 5:7)

PRAYER: Our Father, we confess our many failures which have prevented us from reaching the heights. Forgive us, and help us through new vision to rededicate ourselves and with renewed strength move forward in meaningful discipleship. In the spirit of the Master we ask. Amen.

The Case Of The Flying Snowballs

By Jack Strauss, LL.B.

Mr. Dinkle was driving along in his automobile when he was suddenly bombarded by a foray of snowballs. Hitting his breaks and skidding to a halt Mr. Dinkle vaulted out of his car and caught up with 10- year- old Dennis, the boy responsible for the barrage, just before Dennis had reached the sanctity of his house.

Grabbing the boy by the arm, the enraged motorist led Dennis back to his car and then drove him into town where he turned the boy over to the police with a complaint that Dennis had been throwing snowballs at passing cars.

The next day, Dennis took a second potshot at Mr. Dinkle, but this time in court. He sued Mr. Dinkle for false imprisonment.

"The guy was a big bully," Dennis testified in court. "He had no right to push me around or to take me anywhere against my will in his car."

"The kid's got to be kidding," laughed Mr. Dinkle. "If I hadn't turned him over to a policeman, his snowball throwing might have caused a serious accident. Under the circumstances, my action was both wise and reasonable."

IF YOU WERE THE JUDGE, would you permit the snowball throwing Dennis to collect for false imprisonment?

This is how the judge ruled: YES! The judge held that while a motorist may take reasonable steps to prevent a child from throwing snowballs at passing cars, putting him in a car when the child is only a few yards from his home and then driving him into town to turn him over to a policeman is unreasonable as a matter of law. From the time Dennis was put into the car, concluded the judge, his liberty was illegally restrained so as to constitute false imprisonment.

NBC Triumphs By Early Prediction

NEW YORK (AP) — The analyses are dwindling, the recounts are in progress, sanity appears restored and the television networks are knocking down those mammoth elecion night sets and thinking about 1974.

For NBC it was a night of triumph. It projected President Nixon the winner at 8:30 p.m. - the first to do so - and things went so smoothly it also was the first network to leave the air early Wednesday.

For ABC, it was the night of the slow groan. It was the last to project Nixon the winner; that word came at 9:21 p.m. here.

How did NBC do it? According to Irwin "Bud" Lewis, the network's election director, it could have been done far sooner had NBC been willing to go with an educated belief instead of computer statistics.

"We had a fairly good idea it was in the bag," he said. "At 7, we went with what we knew and we said it in the strongest terms we knew."

The terms came from NBC's John Chancellor. He said Nixon appeared headed for a "Landslide victory" if current voting trends continued.

"Then it was just a matter of adding faster than the other guy," Lewis said.

An ABC Spokesman said his network's delay in projecting Nixon the winner primarily was due to ABC's firm policy of not projecting any state in the presidential race until the polls closed in that state.

ABC's projection would have been swifter, he said, had it not been for four states - including New Jersey - that extended their poll-closing times for one reason or another.

CBS, which projected Nixon the winner at 8:52 p.m., acquitted itself admirably, despite the face 1,200 of its cameramen, technicians and engineers had been on strike against it since Friday.

Its over-all reporting seemed crisper and more concise than that of that of the two other networks; its regional approach to the election gave some form to the often mind-boggling flow of projections that followed the Nixon report.

Crafts Bazaar Set Nov. 18-19

CAPE GIRARDEAU — More than 30 craftsmen are participating in the 1972 Christmas Crafts Bazaar to be held in Cape Girardeau Nov. 18-19.

The bazaar, which is sponsored by the Christian Art Council, will present a wide variety of handcrafted items for sale to the public. Mrs. Robert E. Ramsey, a member of the committee planning the bazaar, reports that the craft items include ceramice, jewelry, beadcraft, toys and sculpture art. "Something for everyone, " she states, "and each an original handmade item."

Professionals and hobbiests alike have entered this year's pre-Christmas bazaar and participants have been drawn from Cape Girardeau and surrounding areas.

The craftwork will be on display at the former Teenage Club Building, 423 Broadview St. on Nov. 18 from 10 a.m. to 9 p.m. and on Nov. 19 from 1 p.m. to 6 p.m. Visitors to the Christmas Crafts Bazaar will be served punch and cookies during the afternoon hours on both days.
